County Health Seeker Buggy for Crippled Tot

Do you have an old baby buggy in your attic that you would be willing to give to the Pickaway county health department? That buggy will be the means of a 10-year-old crippled child making trips from his home. The appeal was made by Dr. A. D. Blackburn, county health commissioner, and Miss Margaret Hunsicker, health nurse, who have been closely watching the child's improvement.

The condition of the body of the buggy makes no difference, they explained. The chassis is what is needed. A special chair for the youngster will be constructed by city firemen and mounted on the chassis. The boy's legs must be kept perfectly straight, they explained. An ordinary wheel chair would not serve the purpose.

"One of these days that boy is going to walk," Dr. A. D. Blackburn said. "If we can get this special chair fixed up it will go a long way toward aiding his recovery."

Funds to purchase materials needed to build the chair have been promised the health department. Anyone having an old baby buggy is asked to contact the health department.

SCHOOL PAPER SCORES LEGION AS UNAMERICAN

COLUMBUS, Feb. 4 — The American Legion stood attacked today in an editorial in the Lantern, Ohio State university newspaper, because, the editorial said, the Legion "timed" a petition asking the legislature to investigate subversive activities at the university "for its effect on Farmers Week visitors."

The Franklin county council of the American Legion petitioned the legislature for an investigation after the Lantern published a story Jan. 26 concerning "Marxism" meetings in the Ohio Union. Leaders of the house and senate said they would support an investigation if the American Legion could submit proof that subversive activities were going on at the university.

The Lantern's editorial, captioned "The Un-American Legion," said: "The Legionnaires won the fight 22 years ago, but we hope they get trimmed in this one."

It added that the Legion petition was an attack on freedom of speech and academic freedom.

R. R. Nevin, Once Member Of Sherrill Committee, Named To Post

SENATE VOTES $1,500

Weekly Pay Provided For Expert; Economies Considered

COLUMBUS, Feb. 4—Shades of the Sherrill committee loomed into the state government picture today with the employment by the senate of R. R. Nevin, Columbus, to conduct a survey of how the state can reduce operating costs.

Nevin, who was chief investigator for the Sherrill group, which made numerous recommendations for economical operation of the government, the majority of which were never carried out, has the same job now with the senate committee on economy in state government.

A new committee set up under the Bricker administration, its aims are to cooperate with state department heads with a view toward discovering which departments are spending too much money and how they may be run with fewer funds.

Young Solon Chairman

Sen. A. D. Baumhart (R-Vermillion) one of the youngest members of the upper house, is chairman of the group and he is enthusiastic over its opportunities to become an important unit in the administration program which is pledged to conduct state business with a minimum of expense.

The job that Nevin did with the Sherrill committee admittedly was a good one and the senate did not hesitate in appropriating $1,500 in senate funds to pay its investigator $50 a week for the duration of the present legislative session.

Part of the funds will be used for whatever stenographic and clerical assistance is needed as the survey develops, Baumhart said. It will be Nevin's job to confer with heads of departments, who

DR. JOHN HOWE NEW PRESIDENT AT U. B. SCHOOL

COLUMBUS, Feb. 4—Dr. John Ruskin Howe, 43, professor of theology at Bonebrake Theological Seminary, Dayton, will take over as president of Otterbein College, Westerville, next Fall, the board of trustees announced today.

The board offered Dr. Howe the job yesterday and he announced he would accept it. He will succeed Dr. Walter S. Clippinger, who is retiring in September after 30 years as president of the college.

Dr. Howe said he would confer with the trustees, probably at the Spring meeting. A native of North Manchester, Ind., Dr. Howe spent his boyhood in Custer, Wood county. He temporarily holds the pastorate of the Ohmer Park Reformed Church in Dayton.

He received his A. B. degree at Otterbein in 1921 and his B. D. degree from Yale in 1924. In 1927 he received Ph. D. degree from Yale and went to Bonebrake Seminary where he has been since.

Renick Dunlap Appointed to Important Fund-Raising Board at Ohio State U.

Renick W. Dunlap, Pickaway township, prominent Ohio State university alumnus, has accepted membership on the National Program Committee of the Ohio State University Development Fund, which will soon launch its first annual campaign program to raise funds for special needs at the University. Harry R. Drackett, Cincinnati industrialist, is chairman of the board of directors of the development fund.

Many of the country's outstanding figures in business and public life are on the committee which will meet in an organization conference on the Ohio State campus Feb. 17 and 18 to discuss plans for the fund raising drive.

Mr. Drackett said the development fund has been organized as a regular department of the university to encourage annual giving by the alumni and interested non-alumni friends of the university. This is their way of participating in the development of the university, he pointed out. All-state supported institutions have found, Mr. Drackett said, that there are many refinements, and special needs of a large university which cannot be met by legislative appropriations.

A survey of these special needs at Ohio State has been made and a project list will soon be ready as the first year's objective, according to Mr. Drackett.

Governor John W. Bricker; Mr. Dunlap, former assistant secretary of agriculture; Elliott Nugent, Hollywood motion picture producer; George M. Trautman, president of the American Baseball Association; Charles P. Cooper, New York, vice president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., and Bishop William J. Scarlett of St. Louis are among the notables who will serve on the national committee for the fund.

Ohio State has been late in adopting this generally accepted plan of raising funds for special needs, Mr. Drackett said, pointing out that more than 100 other universities have had similar plans in operation for several years. The best features of these other plans are to be incorporated in the Ohio State plan, he added.

The trend in university support is away from occasional intensive campaigns for some particular building or endowment project toward the regular annual giving plan, Mr. Drackett added.

Personnel of special committees which are to shape up the fund raising drive are to be announced in a few days, the chairman said.

Special Guards Assigned For Royal Family In Latest Crisis

LORD HALIFAX IN DANGER

Several Gunpowder Caches Located By Searching Authorities

LONDON, Feb. 4—Special precautions for the protection of Britain's royal family were taken today as police throughout the nation were mobilized on an unparalleled scale to crush a vast "gunpowder plot" which authorities blamed on the Irish Republican army.

All royal palaces, especially Windsor castle, where the royal family is spending the week-end, were kept under close police surveillance. The houses of parliament were closed to the public. Guards were mounted in London newspaper offices and telephone exchanges while thousands of police scoured the island hunting hidden explosives and rebellious modern counterparts of Guy Fawkes.

Visitors to Windsor castle and other royal places of residence who carried parcels or suit-cases were required to open them and show their contents to guards. Buckingham palace in London, is never open to the public.

Parliament is in recess until Monday, but because of new revelations of the extent of the plot, and fresh attempts at terrorization on the heels of yesterday's two subway blasts, police decided to keep the public out of the parliamentary buildings lest some revolutionary agent place a time bomb there.

The foreign office confirmed reports that Viscount Halifax, the foreign secretary, received a sensational threatening letter from Irish extremists. Dated January 12, the communication gave the

GERMANS CLAIM F. D. VIOLATING MONROE DECREE

BERLIN, Feb. 4—Charges that President Roosevelt has brought about American interference in European affairs, thereby violating the traditional interpretation of the Monroe Doctrine, and that in disavowing the "Rhine frontier" story he is "retreating," were features of today's unrelenting semi-official attacks on the United States.

The foreign office, through a bulletin of the "diplomatic-political information service," offered this contention:

"The Monroe Doctrine, proclaimed 120 years ago, represented for the American people the most important cornerstone of traditional United States foreign policy."

"The principle of non-interference in the American continent was subsequently recognized by the European nations, because President Monroe had supplemented and justified it by the assurance that the United States would refrain from interference in European affairs."

"The United States has derived great profit from the doctrine which was based on mutual accord... after almost a century of this tradition, these principles, which have shown their advantages for the United States and which were recognized by Germany 120 years ago and reconfirmed on Jan. 30, 1939 (in Chancellor Hitler's Reichstag speech), have been broken unilaterally by two United States politicians curiously resembling each other—Wilson and Roosevelt."

By International News Service
With the full force of flood waters still to be felt in some sections, at least 14 persons were dead and between 500 and 1,000 homeless today in storms and floods in the nation.

The situation, at a glance, was: Tributaries of the Ohio river were on a rampage, and the big Ohio itself was rising rapidly, threatening to pass flood stages at some points. Five persons died in flood torrents in West Virginia, and between 500 and 1,000 were driven from their homes by flood waters in eastern Kentucky.

Nine fishermen were drowned near Cambridge, Md., when a sudden storm struck a fleet of fishing boats. However, flood danger to Washington in the eastern storm area, receded as a six-day rain halted before the march of colder weather.

Icy highways, seven inches of snow, swollen streams and a temperature of 11 degrees combined Saturday to tighten Winter's grip on Pickaway county.

Snow packed highways throughout the county but no serious drifts were reported. Drivers were warned to use extreme caution. Employees of the state highway department, who ordinarily do not work on Saturday, were on duty putting cinders on grades and curves. Lack of a wind prevented drifts.

With the Spanish insurgents before Gerona, Feb. 4—in the wake of seemingly incessant large-scale bombing expeditions, insurgent infantry and artillery moved on Gerona, historic city which for a day was the provisional capital of Spain.

One of the four insurgent columns operating in eastern Catalonia captured and passed the village of Casa de La Selva, but six miles southeast of Gerona, and the fall of the latter city, only 40 miles south of the French frontier, was predicted shortly.

The central column of Generalissimo Francisco Franco's armies, advancing beyond Vich, reached the river Ter, and still another line moved northward without much resistance and drew up lines 20 miles south of Puigcerda, on the French border.

DARBYVILLE NATIVE DIES IN SEATTLE, WASHINGTON

Funeral services were held in Seattle, Wash., Friday for Dr. S. A. D. Miller, 74, a native of Darbyville. Dr. Miller died Feb. 1. His ashes will be returned to Darbyville cemetery for burial. Dr. Miller practiced in Lancaster for 30 years. He retired 20 years ago and moved to Seattle. Dr. Miller was a brother of G. W. Miller and Mrs. J. E. Miller, both of Darbyville.

Renick Dunlap Appointed to Important Fund-Raising Board at Ohio State U.

Renick W. Dunlap, Pickaway township, prominent Ohio State university alumnus, has accepted membership on the National Program Committee of the Ohio State University Development Fund which will soon launch its first annual campaign program to raise funds for special needs at the university. Harry R. Drackett, Cincinnati industrialist, is chairman of the board of directors of the development fund.

Many of the country's outstanding figures in business and public life are on the committee which will meet in an organization conference on the Ohio State campus Feb. 17 and 18 to discuss plans for the fund raising drive.

Mr. Drackett said the development fund has been organized as a regular department of the university to encourage annual giving by the alumni and interested non-alumni friends of the university. This is their way of participating in the development of the university, he pointed out. All-state supported institutions have found, Mr. Drackett said, that there are many refinements, and special needs of a large university which cannot be met by legislative appropriations.

A survey of these special needs at Ohio State has been made and a project list will soon be ready as the first year's objective, according to Mr. Drackett.

Governor John W. Bricker; Mr. Dunlap, former assistant secretary of agriculture; Elliott Nugent, Hollywood motion picture producer; George M. Trautman, president of the American Baseball Association; Charles P. Cooper, New York, vice president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., and Bishop William J. Scarlett of St. Louis are among the notables who will serve on the national committee for the fund.

Ohio State has been late in adopting this generally accepted plan of raising funds for special needs, Mr. Drackett said, pointing out that more than 100 other universities have had similar plans in operation for several years. The best features of these other plans are to be incorporated in the Ohio State plan, he added.

The trend in university support is away from occasional intensive campaigns for some particular building or endowment project toward the regular annual giving plan, Mr. Drackett added.

Personnel of special committees which are to shape up the fund raising drive are to be announced in a few days, the chairman said.

Kingston Invades Athletic Club Court Tonight; Team Unbeaten

Upper Arlington's Golden Bears were just too much for the Tigers of Circleville high school Friday evening, carrying off a one-sided 33-12 margin in a cage game played at the C. A. C. Arlington's tall boys proved adept at handling the ball, keeping it from the Red and Black the greater part of the game, and Tom Wuichet, sterling diminutive guard, put on one of the keenest exhibitions of shooting that Circleville fans have seen in many a moon. Wuichet pumped in five consecutive shots in the first half.

The Red and Black team, playing without Warren Bumgarner, the squad's spark plug, lacked the fire and zip that has marked its play in recent weeks. Not only was Bummy missing, but neither Harold Smith nor Paul Walters were in good enough physical condition to turn on. The lads kept trying, but there was nothing they could do against the more versatile Columbus suburbanites.

Arlington started out on the long end of the count and remained there during the entire fray. Wuichet, Zartman, Jack Wilce and Allen hit the hoop from many angles to run up a 13-5 advantage at the end of the first period and a 26-5 margin at half-time. Using substitutes frequently, the Arlington team hit for only two points in the third period while the Tigers were getting a single marker. The teams started the final period with the score resting at 28-6. Whitey Davis, well-covered during the first three periods, broke away for three goals in the last session to account for nine of Circleville's dozen points.

Even the reserves failed to impress, Arlington's team getting a 29-11 margin. Coach Black, with four of his squad members missing because of illness, was sorely pressed for replacements in both encounters.

It's George Miraban and his fast Kingston cagers against the high school varsity tonight in the C.A.C. gymnasium. The game will get under way about 8:15, a reserve team preliminary being started at 7:30.

Kingston is bringing a clean slate to Circleville. No defeats have been suffered by the club, which won the eastern half title in the Ross county league. Bob Terhune's Clarksburg team, beaten only a couple of points by the Red and Black, won the western half gonfalon.

Some Game Notes

It was Capital university night at the C.A.C. Friday. Coach Walter Heischman of Upper Arlington, ex-coach Jack Landrum and Mrs. Landrum of Bexley, and Referee Gene Mechling of Chillicothe, all being ex-Capital athletes, that is all except Mrs. Landrum.

Some other Lutheran school followers were in the stands, notably the Rev. George L. Troutman and Hildeburn Martin, Red and Black alumni, who is attending the East Main street school.

Pete Sayers, Arlington's great football tackle, handled the timer's watch as a representative of the Golden Bears. Jack and Jim Wilce of the Arlington team are sons of Dr. J. W. Wilce, former Ohio State coach.

Byron Eby, a Wilce-coached Ohio State, kept the official time clock. Referee Mechling's officiating brought catcalls at times from the sidelines, many of the razzberries coming from the Stooze Dad section where basketball is taken seriously.

Did you ever see a keener exhibition of shooting than Tommy Wuichet put on in the first half for the invaders? Many, among them yep janitor, feared Wuichet had a broken arm when he rebounded off the north wall after being fouled by Bob Liston.

SEMI-FINALS IN FLORIDA WOMEN'S TOURNEY OPEN

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 4.—Semi-final rounds of the annual Miami-Biltmore women's golf championship were to be played today, with titian-haired Patty Berg, of Minneapolis, facing Laddie Irwin, of Glen Ridge, N. J., and Dorothy Kirby, of Atlanta, engaging Ella-mae Williams, of Chicago.

The four semi-finalists came through second and third round skirmishes yesterday.

Berg, national women's champion and winner of the current meet the last four years, carded four birdies and an eagle in her quarter-final match with Marion Riley, and turned back the Lexington, Ky., Miss. Tand 5. She was four under par for the 13 holes played.

Miss Kirby, who won the qualifying medal with a record-equaling 79, advanced to the semi-finals by eliminating Jean Bauer, of Providence, R. I., 4 and 2.

Miss Irwin had easy sailing in disposing of Mrs. Harvey F. Mack, of Easton, Pa., 7 and 4 in the afternoon round. In the morning she had sent Shirley Ann Johnson, of Chicago, to the sidelines, 4 and 3. Miss Williams won her match by the same score, 4 and 3.

Ashville Clinches Title, Retires Herald Cup

BRONCOS ANNEX ELEVENTH TILT WITHOUT LOSS

Harrison Township Lassies Eliminated From Chance In Tournament

PICKAWAY DEFEATS SCIOTO

Williamsport's Carter Dumps Bucket To Edge Walnut In Overtime

Ashville's tall and capable sharpshooters won the Pickaway county cage league title Friday evening by turning back Jackson township, 56 to 14, while Pickaway township was bumping Scioto 46-35. Ashville is the only team in the county with a clean slate throughout the league competition, while every other club has lost at least two games. Ashville closes its league schedule next Friday evening on the Atlanta court.

As a result of the victory, the Ashville lads win permanent possession of the trophy given four years ago by The Daily Herald. To permanently claim the cup a team must win the title three consecutive years. Ashville wasn't alone on top the loop in the last three years, but held at least a share on the honor.

While the Ashville boys were winning, the girls representing the school were bumped out of the tournament by a scrapping Jackson township team that gained a 14-13 advantage.

Girls' Teams About Set

It appeared Saturday that Darby, winner of The Herald cup this year; Pickaway, Walnut and Scioto would be the four girls teams to play in the tournament. Ashville's boys were unable to get going against the Jackson defense in the first half, which ended 14-8 in their favor, but the last half saw some of the greatest basket shooting the county league has experienced in recent years when the Harrison township lads piled up 42 points. Barney Reese, speedy guard, looped the ball through the net 10 times from the field.

Pickaway's Junior Anderson, using a hook shot to great advantage, led the Pirates to a well-earned victory over Scioto. The loss was Scioto's second of the year. Anderson hit the hoop for five buckets and two free throws in the first half and four goals in the second.

Pickaway girls won a place in the tournament by edging Scioto 25-21, in a thriller.

Eddie Carter, Williamsport center, bumped in a rebound bucket to win a "sudden death" overtime game for his team from Walnut. The official playing time ended with the score 26-21. Carter's bucket ended festivities. Walnut girls clinched a tourney spot with a 24-19 margin.

Washington township took a rough 32-22 game from Monroe, Wolfe, Washington guard, firing seven action buckets through the hoop. Long was best for Monroe with 12 points.

The Monroe girls lost a one-point contest, 17 to 18.

New Holland, not scheduled in the county Friday evening, held Good Hope without a point in the first three periods to win a 43-13 game. Good Hope found itself trailing 38 to 0 as the final period started.

No report was submitted of the Darby-Muhlenberg game played on the Darbyville court.

RICKEY, M'PHAIL OVER 20 NATIONS MAY PURCHASE SEND STARS TO BROOKLYN CLUB? MILLROSE GAMES

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—Do Branch Rickey and Larry MacPhail intend to form a partnership and purchase the Brooklyn Dodgers from the Ebbets-McKeever interests?

There are those who read that startling development into today's announcement that identifies Branch Rickey, Jr., as the new supervisor of the Dodgers' farm system.

The younger Rickey, now only 25 years old, has been in the employ of the St. Louis Cardinals for the last four years, and the transfer is significant.

Reports are in circulation that Branch Rickey, Sr., and Sam Breadon have clashed on matters of club policy, and some confirmation is indicated by the recent sharp curtailment of the Cardinals' farm organization.

MELIO BETTING IN A BUMPS TIGER FOX IN NINTH ROUND

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—John Henry Lewis may still be lightweight champion of the world everywhere else, but in New York state at least, the acknowledged new ruler of the division, is Melio Bettina, a youthful Italian from Beacon, N. Y.

The beetle-browed concrete mixer with the macadam chin won his title by scoring a technical knockout over the ancient and much-carved Tiger Jack Fox of Spokane in the ninth round at Madison Square Garden last night.

There never was a more fantastic setting for a fight nor a stranger battle than this struggle for what is at best a synthetic title, but one which may and probably will bring its owner a fortune.

It seemed as if everybody had deserted his home town and migrated to New York to lend the most weird assortment of noisy supporters these ears have ever heard.

They brought a big green-uniformed band that delayed the start of the fight while they paraded round and round the ring playing to their conquering hero soon to be.

And the other Beacons, male and female, brought cow bells, tin horns and other noise makers, to say nothing of marvelous sets of vocal chords. And they used them all.

While the fighters were lacing on their gloves, Jimmy Grippo, the professional magician and hypnotist, annoyed the Tiger by trying to hypnotize him.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 4.—H. M. Woolf's Kentucky derby winner of last year, Lawrin, has been withdrawn from the $50,000 added Widener cup race to be held at Hialeah park March 4, it was announced today. Trainer Ben A. Jones said an injury had not responded to treatment and the thoroughbred was not in shape.

SEMI-FINALS IN FLORIDA WOMEN'S TOURNEY OPEN

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 4.—Semi-final rounds of the annual Miami-Biltmore women's golf championship were to be played today, with titian-haired Patty Berg, of Minneapolis, facing Laddie Irwin, of Glen Ridge, N. J., and Dorothy Kirby, of Atlanta, engaging Ella-mae Williams, of Chicago. The four semi-finalists came through second and third round skirmishes yesterday. Mrs. Berg, national women's champion and winner of the current meet the last four years, carried four birdies and an eagle in her quarter-final match with Marion Riley, and turned back the Lexington, Ky., Miss. Tand 5. She was four under par for the 13 holes played. Miss Kirby, who won the qualifying medal with a record-equaling 79, advanced to the semi-finals by eliminating Jean Bauer, of Providence, R. I., 4 and 2. Miss Irwin had easy sailing in disposing of Mrs. Harvey F. Mack, of Easton, Pa., 7 and 4 in the afternoon round. In the morning she had sent Shirley Ann Johnson, of Chicago, to the sidelines, 4 and 3. Miss Williams won her match by the same score, 4 and 3.

a 46-28 edge over Adelphi, Center Jordan hitting the hoop for 16 points and Guard Sims connecting for 10 counters. Clarksburg turned back Frankfort, 35-19, on the Clarksburg court, Joe Ater getting 12 points and Hammon scoring 11. Kingston invades Circleville tonight to meet the Red and Black varsity team.

Ashville Clinches Title, Retires Herald Cup

BRONCOS ANNEX ELEVENTH TILT WITHOUT LOSS

Harrison Township Lassies Eliminated From Chance In Tournament

PICKAWAY DEFEATS SCIOTO

Williamsport's Carter Dumps Bucket To Edge Walnut In Overtime

Ashville's tall and capable sharpshooters won the Pickaway county cage league title Friday evening by turning back Jackson township, 56 to 14, while Pickaway township was bumping Scioto 46-35. Ashville is the only team in the county with a clean slate throughout the league competition, while every other club has lost at least two games. Ashville closes its league schedule next Friday evening on the Atlanta court.

As a result of the victory, the Ashville lads win permanent possession of the trophy given four years ago by The Daily Herald. To permanently claim the cup a team must win the title three consecutive years. Ashville wasn't alone on top the loop in the last three years, but held at least a share on the honor. While the Ashville boys were winning, the girls representing the school were bumped out of the tournament by a scrapping Jackson township team that gained a 14-13 advantage.

Girls' Teams About Set

It appeared Saturday that Darby, winner of The Herald cup this year; Pickaway, Walnut and Scioto would be the four girls teams to play in the tournament. Ashville's boys were unable to get going against the Jackson defense in the first half, which ended 14-8 in their favor, but the last half saw some of the greatest basket shooting the county league has experienced in recent years when the Harrison township lads piled up 42 points. Barney Reese, speedy guard, looped the ball through the net 10 times from the field.

Pickaway's Junior Anderson, using a hook shot to great advantage, led the Pirates to a well-earned victory over Scioto. The loss was Scioto's second of the year. Anderson hit the hoop for five buckets and two free throws in the first half and four goals in the second.

Pickaway girls won a place in the tournament by edging Scioto 25-21, in a thriller.

Eddie Carter, Williamsport center, bumped in a rebound bucket to win a "sudden death" overtime game for his team from Walnut. The official playing time ended with the score 26-11. Carter's bucket ended festivities. Walnut girls clinched a tourney spot with a 24-19 margin.

Washington township took a rough 32-22 game from Monroe, Wolfe, Washington guard, firing seven action buckets through the hoop. Long was best for Monroe with 12 points.

The Monroe girls lost a one-point contest, 17 to 18. New Holland, not scheduled in the county Friday evening, held Good Hope without a point in the first three periods to win a 43-13 game. Good Hope found itself trailing 38 to 0 as the final period started.

No report was submitted of the Darby-Muhlenberg game played on the Darbyville court.

RICKEY, M'PHAIL OVER 20 NATIONS MAY PURCHASE SEND STARS TO BROOKLYN CLUB? MILLROSE GAMES

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—Do Branch Rickey and Larry MacPhail intend to form a partnership and purchase the Brooklyn Dodgers from the Ebbets-McKeever interests?

There are those who read that startling development into today's announcement that identifies Branch Rickey, Jr., as the new supervisor of the Dodgers' farm system.

The younger Rickey, now only 25 years old, has been in the employ of the St. Louis Cardinals for the last four years, and the transfer is significant.

Reports are in circulation that Branch Rickey, Sr., and Sam Breadon have clashed on matters of club policy, and some confirmation is indicated by the recent sharp curtailment of the Cardinals' farm organization.

MELIO BETTINA BUMPS TIGER FOX IN NINTH ROUND

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—John Henry Lewis may still be lightweight champion of the world everywhere else, but in New York state at least, the acknowledged new ruler of the division, is Melio Bettina, a youthful Italian from Beacon, N. Y.

The beetle-browed concrete mixer with the macadam chin won his title by scoring a technical knockout over the ancient and much-carved Tiger Jack Fox of Spokane in the ninth round at Madison Square Garden last night.

There never was a more fantastic setting for a fight nor a stranger battle than this struggle for what is at best a synthetic title, but one which may and probably will bring its owner a fortune.

It seemed as if everybody had deserted his home town and migrated to New York to lend the most weird assortment of noisy supporters these ears have ever heard.

They brought a big green-uniformed band that delayed the start of the fight while they paraded round and round the ring playing to their conquering hero soon to be.

And the other Beaconites, male and female, brought cow bells, tin horns and other noise makers, to say nothing of marvelous sets of vocal chords. And they used them all.

While the fighters were lacing on their gloves, Jimmy Grippo, the professional magician and hypnotist, annoyed the Tiger by trying to hypnotize him.

LOYOLA GIVES C. C. N. Y. LESSON IN BASKETBALL

CHICAGO, Feb. 4.—The City College of New York's highly-touted basketball team headed back home today after a costly lesson on how basketball is played in the Midwest. Loyola of Chicago last night defeated the C. C. N. Y. quintet, 52 to 27, in the last half of a twin basketball bill. In the first game, Butler university beat De Paul, 39 to 29.

GALENTO GAINS COMEDY VERDICT BACK TO WHIP IN BROWN BOUT CHICAGO BOXER

DETROIT, Feb. 4.—Bellowing his defiance of all heavyweight fighters extant, including, and specifically mentioning, Joe Louis, world's titleholder, Tony Galento, Orange, N. J., overstuffed batter today offered to whip anybody, any two anybody, put into the ring with him.

Tony's bit of defying came shortly after Natie Brown, Washington, D. C., veteran, had subsided with a dull thud and heaps of histrionics last night in the fourth round of a scheduled ten-rounder, amid a chorus of boos.

Around the ringside rose a dull mutter at Brown's action. Veteran fight reporters shrugged their shoulders and figuratively wiped drops of water from their persons, the ringwise sign of a "tank" fight.

From the gallery came a clear cry of "Is there a talent scout for the movies around? Get that Brown, he's a natural."

The fight went ten minutes and thirteen seconds of which time Natie spent more than 80 seconds on the canvas and nearly all the remainder in a none too convincing pretense at fighting back.

If this was part of the campaign to bring Tony to the fore as Joe Louis' next opponent it didn't sit well with the fans who are expected to flock to watch the human gargyle that is Galento try to win for the champion.

Peter Preaches at Pentecost

The disciples are gathered together with their risen Lord, who tells them that they will be baptized by the Holy Ghost, and then ascends to heaven.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Acts 2:5-18, 36-41.

By Alfred J. Buescher

On the day of Pentecost, or Jewish harvest home, the disciples are baptized with the Holy Ghost which descends on them like cloven tongues of fire.

They begin to speak in different languages, and some think them drunk, but are rebuked by Peter who by his words converts and baptizes over 3,000.

Peter dreams of a sheet let down from heaven and that God rebukes him for calling any food common or unclean. (GOLDEN TEXT—Zechariah 4:6.)

"Not by might, nor by power, but by My spirit, saith the Lord of Hosts."—Zechariah 4:6.

Presbyterian Churches Of Ohio Plan Rallies

A series of rallies and conferences for the 600 Presbyterian churches throughout Ohio is scheduled for Feb. 5 to 13. They will be held in strategic centers in each of the fourteen Presbyteries into which the Ohio Synod is divided. Nationally known denominational leaders from New York, Philadelphia, and Chicago have been secured as speakers and directors of the conferences. Local leaders from each of the Presbyteries will also have parts on the programs.

This is part of a state-wide movement to enlist the 160,000 communicant members in a program of spiritual advance which is known as "Ohio's Opportunity Year".

Among the objectives of the movement are: a 25 percent increase in church attendance; a gain of at least 6 percent in new members on confession of faith; the enrollment of 10 new people in the Sunday Schools for every 100 on the roll; and an advance in the financial support of the churches for local work and missionary causes.

This program was adopted by the Ohio Presbyterian Synod at its meeting in Wooster last June and is being directed by Synod's General Presbyter Service Committee of which Dr. Hugh I. Evans, Dayton, is chairman. The committee also includes Drs. Howard D. Borley, Zanesville; Benjamin V. Andrews, Cleveland; and the six General Presbyters who are in charge of the districts of the state. They are Drs. A. W. Bloomfield, Cleveland; Clarence S. Gee, Columbus; Earl R. North, Cincinnati; C. L. Plymate, Dayton; John Sharpe, Martins Ferry, and E. A. Walker, Massillon.

The committees on United Promotions in each of the fourteen Presbyteries are directing the work and making local arrangements for the conferences. The General Council of the denomination is represented by Dr. Arthur H. Limouze, New York. Special goals have been approved for the Lenten season and the entire program will terminate with Easter.

Twenty outside speakers will visit the fourteen Presbyteries. Among them are Dr. E. Graham Wilson, New York, Secretary for National Missions; Dr. Henry Little, Chicago, Secretary for Foreign Missions; Dr. William Ralph Hall, Philadelphia, Secretary for Christian Education; Dr. Reid S. Dickson, Philadelphia, Secretary for Pensions; and Dr. Arthur H. Limouze, New York, Promotional Secretary of the General Council.

Meetings are scheduled for Cleveland, Cincinnati, Columbus, Dayton, Toledo, Youngstown, Wooster, Ashtabula, St. Clairsville, Marion, Alliance, Zanesville, Portsmouth, Lima, Athens, Steubenville, and Martins Ferry.

Ladies of the Methodist church will observe the World Wide International Missionary Tea in the church on Tuesday at 2:30 p. m.

The annual Sunday school dinner of the First Methodist church will be held in the social rooms on Wednesday from 5 to 7 p. m. A chicken dinner will be served. Miss Mattie Gearhart is chairman in charge. A large attendance is expected.

The Rev. Robert T. Kelsey will speak in the First Presbyterian church Sunday morning on "The Comfort of Temptation." Musical numbers for the worship hour include an anthem by the choir entitled "Light of the World," by Brackett. There are many things that we want to know about food. We want to know what foods we should eat, where our foods come from, how we get our food, and how we can help in getting our food.

The P.-T. A. has given us several new books for good attendance during November and December.

We have just finished the study of Eskimos by writing a story of the things we have learned. This story was written by Billy Tigner. Eskimos live in little snow houses. Also in the Winter they catch seals, deer, walrus, and caribou. Eskimo women chew seal skin. They wear their teeth off up to their gums. The Eskimos do not ride on their sleds unless they are sick. They use bones for needles, and pieces of muscle for thread. The Eskimo people wear two suits of clothing. The dogs stay in a little hut beside their master's house. In the Summer they have a few fruits and vegetables.

Fifth Grade

Peter Preaches at Pentecost

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Acts 2:5-18, 36-41.

The disciples are gathered together with their risen Lord, who tells them that they will be baptized by the Holy Ghost, and then ascends to heaven.

On the day of Pentecost, or Jewish harvest home, the disciples are baptized with the Holy Ghost which descends on them like cloven tongues of fire.

They begin to speak in different languages, and some think them drunk, but are rebuked by Peter who by his words converts and baptizes over 3,000.

Peter dreams of a sheet let down from heaven and that God rebukes him for calling any food common or unclean. (GOLDEN TEXT—Zechariah 4:6.)

"Not by might, nor by power, but by My Spirit, saith the Lord of Hosts."—Zechariah 4:6.

NAIL-LESS HOMES

WHEN that new building boom so long prophesied does eventuate, it is going to be a humdinger. That is evident from the startling prophecies made every little while regarding materials and methods of construction.

At a conference in the Yale School of Fine Arts, R. V. Parsons, research engineer, tells of fire-resistant houses stuck together with a resinous glue that will make the wood almost as strong as metal.

This construction, he suggests, will be used to create a flock of new cities for people with moderate incomes. A city will be a community enterprise, having not less than 25,000 acres of land, with all property titles held by common authority, and will contain 30,000 to 100,000 persons. There will be a "green belt" around every city, as a barrier and for playgrounds and gardens. The houses will go up quickly and easily, 10,000 at a time.

The construction too, he says, "will make a better house than can possibly be contrived from thousands of parts nailed together by hand carpenter labor."

It sounds wonderful. But there's usually at least one catch in a Utopian plan of any kind. With such a type of construction, what will happen to the carpenters and other building trades? And to the nail industry?

HOSPITAL SERVICE GAINS

WHILE the debate about "socialized medicine" continues to trouble part of the public, another part goes swiftly ahead with cooperative, non-profit medical service programs. According to the American Hospital Association there are now 53 such groups in the country with nearly 3,000,000 members. In New York City the hospital service plan doubled its enrollment during 1938. Fifteen cities and one state which had not done so before inaugurated the system last year.

The hospital service plan is simply an insurance plan, whereby a lot of people, pooling small fees regularly, may receive a specified amount of hospital or medical care when emergency arises. It also pays the doctors for work which either would not have to come to them or would have been poorly paid if it came.

So long as patients may choose their doctors and hospitals, and doctors and hospitals follow recognized ethical practices, the system promises more and better medical care and greater reward for doctors without the dire effects feared in some quarters.

We may yet have to build houses with sound-proof cellars to escape from loud-speakers in the sky ordering us to buy this and that.

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . Hour by Hour

PAGES from the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Up to find a snow storm, a real one that was received by everything from shouts of glee to growls. My reaction was about half way between. Within the hour I began hearing tales of snows back in the old days. Seems to me, too, that the snows were deeper when I was a youngster, but I have commented on them very little since hearing a wise man explain why the snows seemed deeper then. A snow that would be up to my waist as a child now would be little more than knee deep.

Slick highways now and slower traffic than I have seen in many a moon. Everyone being careful, but soon the snow will pass and most of us will become careless again. Jim Stout and Clarence Wolf dropped into the office and found me chin deep in work. Was glad for the chance to knock off and chat. There goes Frank Lynch, who has just been elected president of the Ohio Bottlers' Association for the eleventh time. That's a real distinction for a small town man.

Note by the prints that the American Legion is "un-American." Or so says the student publication of Ohio State University. Some great "journalist" on the student paper takes the Legion to task because the veterans object to alleged Red activity in the state university and ask for a legislative investigation. The kid scribbler declares that the Legion attacks the freedom of speech. The Legion does no such thing. It is American enough to defend the right of freedom of speech, but it does object to opening the publicly-owned and publicly maintained halls of a state institution so that a loud-mouthed Red may have a place to tell us just what is wrong with a country that is entirely too good for him. The Legion does not attack free speech, but it questions the open-arm manner in which the radicals are welcomed at institutions of learning.

Maybe the youngsters at State believe that a well rounded education should include full knowledge of all forms of government.

Personally I don't think the form of government is so important as the opportunities the government provides for general peace, prosperity and worship of God. Our form of government does reasonably well, as a matter of fact much better than any other. Before giving too serious thought to promises I believe that the students should give a little thought to actuality. They should compare their condition with youths of Red Russia for instance. Compare the condition of their parents and the parents of Russian youths. And, before they delve too far into theories I believe they should ask themselves just one question. Would I trade positions with any Russian youth? If the answer to that question is affirmative I feel certain that I can arrange for a transfer.

Yes, a little knowledge is a dangerous thing. Particularly is it a dangerous thing when the one who entertains it believes it to be all embracing.

HULL CUSSES OUT LOBBYISTS

WASHINGTON — Cordell Hull is not good at writing diplomatic notes; his young men in the State Department write them for him. But when it comes to good old-fashioned cussing, the Secretary of State is unexcelled by anyone in the Administration.

The other day on Capitol Hill he let loose his choice vocabulary against the Sugar Lobby. "Congress is swarming with lobbyists who bedevil us," he charged. He called them other names, unprintable here. Secretary Hull failed to mention all the other breeds and brands of lobbyists now swarming Capitol Hill. But as an indication of how the lobbyists have come back into their own despite congressional investigations, here is the roll-call of the sugar lobbying "devils" so-called by Mr. Hull. It includes Senators and close members of the Administration.

Here is the list:
United States Cane Sugar Refiners Association—This, the most effective of all sugar lobbies, represents three-fourths of the national sugar business, rented a swank house next to Herbert Hoover's and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson's last year where Congressmen were wine and dined and lined up for sugar.

Head of this outfit is Ellsworth Bunker, vice president of the National Sugar Refining Company of New Jersey. Lush salaries also are paid to two ex-government employees, John Dalton, former chief of the AAA Sugar Section, and Charles F. Boots, former legislative counsel for the Senate.

Farmers and Manufacturers Beet Sugar Association—This is represented by Clarence Bourg, one of the most active lobbyists in Washington, who is constantly drumming up grievances, fancied and real, against the Agriculture Department. The more hot water the sugar industry gets into, apparently, the more valuable become Mr. Bourg's services.

JEFFERSON ISLAND

Philippine Sugar Association — Ex-Senator Harry Hawes of Missouri represents the Philippines and does a very good job. His parties on Jefferson Island on the Chesapeake are the Mecca for Democratic Congressmen, at which times he has no trouble in getting across his sugar views. He is one of the most gracious hosts in Washington, and has proved that wining and dining pays dividends. He also contributes to the campaign fund of certain Senators on the Insular Affairs Committee.

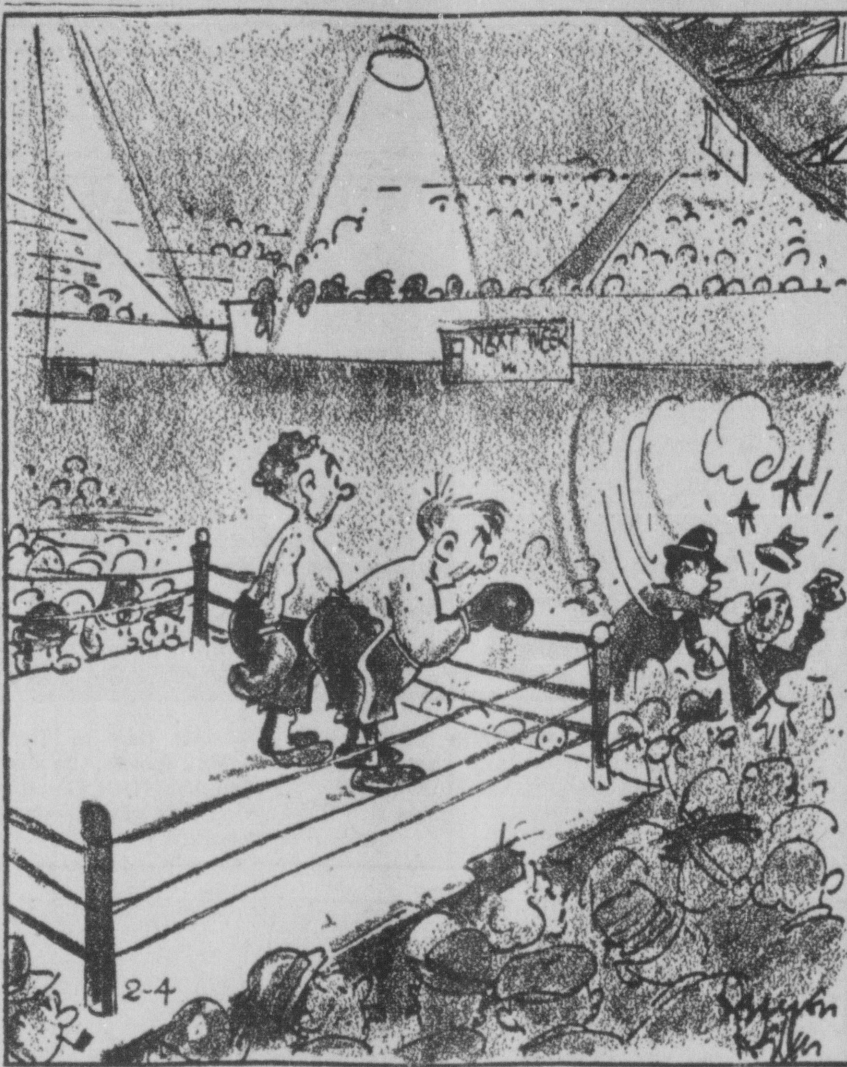

The Cuban Lobby is headed by Dr. Oscar Diaz Albertini, a high grade man, but because of his status as a foreigner, operating less obtrusively than the others.

The National Beet Sugar Growers Association is dominated by the big landowners who employ Mexican and child labor, but they let the individual farmers front for them. It is constantly yammering for higher sugar prices on the pretense that it is battling for the farmer.

BEET SUGAR INFLUENCE

Although the beet growers do not handle as much sugar as the cane sugar refiners, they have far more influence on Capitol Hill through their control of Senators from the Rocky Mountain States. This lobby is headed by Charles M. Kearney, with Val C. Sherman as publicity agent.

Developing Chest as "T. B." Defense

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

A NORMAL human chest is flat, and a chest subject to tuberculosis is round. By "flat" is not meant that the chest is caved in, in front, but that it is narrower from front to back than it should be. The tuberculosis or consumptive chest is bent over the front, looks flat, but in reality it is deeper than the healthier flat chest.

These statements are contradictory to those usually made or believed. I think most doctors, even those who work in tuberculosis, would say, if asked, that the chest least likely to acquire tuberculosis is not flat, but deep.

When Dr. S. A. Weisman, of Minneapolis, discovered this contradiction several years ago, he suggested to him that it might be used to aid in individual defenses against the disease. In any such infection as tuberculosis, there must be the fact-tor of the soil and the seed. For the development of a case of tuberculosis, there must be the load of germs, and there must be a suitable kind of constitution on which the germs may grow. The round barrel chest represents a kind of soil that is favorable to growth.

Dr. Weisman believes that there is much that can be done in your life to change the type of chest. All children's chests are round, and in the course of development become flat. Respiratory infections keep them round and thereby make a good soil for tuberculosis. Adenoids, repeated attacks of tonsillitis, bronchitis, chronic bronchitis and asthma are conditions that tend to produce round chests and all are, to a certain extent, subject to correction. Exercises especially adapted to developing a proper chest expansion and to the production of reserve defense against tuberculosis can be planned.

Exercise Counts

Forty years ago Hutchinson wrote in regard to correcting the round-chestedness of the tubercular type, "a month of tree climbing will do more good than a gallon of treatment after the disease has developed." He advised "a reversion to the arboreal habits of our ancestors" to correct malformations in children's chests. In active tuberculosis, rest is important, so tree-climbing is taboo, but for children who have no signs or symptoms of tuberculosis, other than a poorly developed chest, the old advice is still good. Other exercises are climbing ladders with the back toward the ladder; the ladder used is that found in orthopedic or fully equipped gymnasiums. Swimming is excellent. Any work with horizontal bars, or rings, or other equipment, which makes the exerciser hang by the hands, is the kind desired.

These days gymnasium teachers are busy teaching children rhythm which does nothing to develop the chest or expand the lungs, while the ropes, rings, horizontal ladders and bars have all been tied up or put away.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

T. R. W.: "Please advise in what form and how you would recommend replacement doses of iodine be given."

Answer: Replacement iodine therapy for the prevention of goiter is given in the form of sodium iodide, three grains daily for ten consecutive days, twice a year—spring and fall.

A. R.: "(a) I would like to know if it is safe to have a mole removed with an electric needle and if it will leave a scar. This mole is on the face in a conspicuous place. (b) Is there any harm in having a temperature of 99 up to 99.5 in the afternoon almost daily?"

Answer:—(a) Removal of moles with electric needles is a satisfactory form of treatment. No guarantee can be made that a scar will not result. (b) Certainly. It calls for a complete physical examination, especially of the chest, immediately.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

WHOSE GUESS IS IT?

THAT QUESTION IS one of the stock jokes in some bridge circles, when the bidding is ended and a careless player is in doubt as to whether it is his lead or his partner's. Pretty logical rules govern the choice of lead, based on the bidding that has been done and the cards that are held. But sometimes the card that seems to be probably the best possible lead turns out to be the worst, and the one which figures to be the worst lead turns out to be the best.

This deal was bid differently at most tables of a duplicate game, nearly all declarers somehow reaching contracts of 7-Spades. The briefest bidding was where North bid 1-Diamond and South went at once to seven. In all cases North bid his diamonds.

At some tables, after a lead of the heart Q, the declarer managed to go down two, losing two trump tricks to East. At several the set was held to one after that lead because the declarer played the hand right after the heart K won, the spade, disclosed East's trump holding. The heart K was then cashed, club taken in, Diamond A and K played furnishing a heart discard, and the club K furnishing another, then heart was ruffed by South, who threw East in the lead with the spade 5 to the 6, only trick lost.

Perfect play was of no value to one declarer, however, because an inexperienced player led the diamond Q, theoretically worst lead in his hand, judging from the bidding. That, however, broke communication between the declarer's holdings so that he could never get a heart discard on the club K and had to lose a heart and a trump, no matter what he tried to do.

DEATH AT THE MANOR

BY M. E. CORNE

RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER FORTY-THREE

"IS-IT important?" I asked Mac when I recalled that Mrs. Witherspoon didn't move when I cut her finger during the manicure.

"I think so. Tell me, Elsie, did the finger bleed?"

"Bled?" I tried to think. "No—no, it didn't bleed. The cut made a gash like I said and the blood sort of came to the top, but it didn't run over. It was like—like jelly!"

Phil whistled. I glanced from one to the other. "What does it mean?"

"It means, girl," Mac said, "it means that she was dead when you cut her finger."

"Dead?" I had difficulty swallowing. "Then—then I was working on a corpse?"

"You were," he affirmed. "Dead bodies, Elsie, don't bleed."

"Oh!" I gasped. "I couldn't have saved her?"

"No, you couldn't have saved her. It was her time to go and she went."

"Why—that's what Mr. Horace said. His very words!"

"So where does that get us?" Phil demanded. "She died half an hour earlier than we thought. That fact doesn't solve the mystery by a whole lot!"

Mac agreed: "It doesn't solve the mystery, lad, but it helps. It does help."

"Well, it's way over my head," Phil was cross. "If you know who did the killing, as you keep hinting, why don't you do something about it?"

"Ditto!" put in the chief. "Say the word and I'll get a warrant."

Mac regarded them tolerantly: "Ever hear the old saying: 'There's a time and a place for everything'?"

"Sure, but—"

"This is the place, Benson, but it isn't the time. I don't know the identity of the killer. I only suspect. And if it is who I think it is, we have about as much chance of proving his crimes as Elsie here has of flying to the moon. Our man or woman is no common murderer. He or she is smart—clever! Our criminal left no loose ends. Not one."

I said anxiously: "But you have eliminated Mr. Richard?"

"Mostly, Elsie; mostly. Unless I'm greatly mistaken, he hasn't the guts—begging your pardon—for murder. Stealing just about finished him!"

"Poison is a woman's weapon, isn't it, Mac?" inquired the chief, scratching his head.

"Poison is anyone's weapon," Mac informed him, his eyes twinkling. He was too old a hand to be so easily tripped. "And that reminds me that I want to take a look at the laboratory upstairs. Not that I expect to find the cyanide neatly labeled and waiting for me."

He hastened to add, "but it just doesn't pay to take things for granted in this business. Well?"

He raised his voice inquiringly. Someone was knocking.

"I may come in!" A familiar voice sounded in the hall.

"So!" exclaimed Phil in a bored tone. "Our palsy-walsy, the count! Wonder what he wants?"

"Mac!" I jerked the detective's sleeve. "I—I think I know what he wants. Tell him to come back in a minute."

"You know!" Mac's eyebrows were in momentary danger of tangling with his hair. "My God! Is there no end to your deceit?" He looked angry. I thought he would refuse my request, but he only shrugged his shoulders and went to the door. "Now what?" he demanded when he had sent the count about his business.

I closed my eyes, took a deep breath and began. When I had finished my story of the meeting in the woods he had no word to say. He stood staring at me as if I were some strange sort of insect he had never seen.

"You take the cake, Elsie!" he said finally. "Are you quite positive you aren't hiding the murderer around the house somewhere?"

I had the grace to flush. "Sorry—anyway, you know now."

"Yes, I know NOW," he echoed, and added something about "locking the barn door after the horse was stolen." I never knew a man so fond of quoting maxims.

"So his royal highness tries his hand at blackmail!" Phil remarked thoughtfully.

"Regular blackmailers' paradise, this!" Mac growled. "Everyone with something to hide, and willing to pay to keep it hidden! Evidently Orsini knows where the tissue came from; and now that the girl has turned him down, he's going to squeal!"

"But we've hunted high and low for those tissues," Phil reminded him. "Not a soul in this house smokes hand-rolled cigarettes; I can vouch for that!"

"Don't worry your head about it," Mac advised. "We'll just wait for his nibs to return and tell us all about it!"

But McIntyre, for once in his life, was over-optimistic. The count did not return to tell us all about it. Ten, fifteen, twenty minutes we waited until, at last, with a muttered oath, Mac jumped up and dashed out into the corridor.

"I'll find that fellow if I have to tear the place to pieces!" he stormed. "You!" he hailed a figure in cap and apron. "Have you seen Count Orsini?"

"No," the girl shook her head. "I see no one," she said, and passed quickly by him, darting fearful backward glances at his scowling countenance.

"Are you looking for someone?" "Eh?" He spun around. In the doorway of the drawing room stood Daphne Witherspoon.

"Yes!" He strode toward her. "I'm looking for that ex-dance of yours."

"Ex?" Daphne appeared amused. A half-smile hovered about her lips. "Aren't you a trifle premature, Mr. McIntyre?" she drawled. She nodded behind her. "Count Orsini is inside. We have been discussing plans for a quiet and early wedding."

"And that," remarked Mac dispiritedly, "is that!"

"How can she marry that—that clotheshorse?" I demanded indignantly of the world in general. "And break Mr. Jeffrey's heart?"

"You never can tell why a girl marries a certain man," Mac returned, with a flash of his old humor. "Look at you and Phil!"

"Hush!" My face felt like a four-ton alarm fire. Phil and I were not even engaged.

Phil grinned, enjoying my discomfort. "Oh, I'm not so bad, am I, Elsie? Of course, I haven't much money, but I am good looking!"

"Conceited pup!" I retorted, sticking my tongue out at him. "You'll never cause Apollo any anxious moments!"

"My God!" He groaned in mock despair. "Will you never stop raving about that guy? You think maybe you're a Venus?"

"If you two want to compete for a beauty prize," said Mac, disgusted, "you can stay here and compete! I'm going to the third floor and turn that laboratory inside out."

"You're not sneaking away from us! Not at this stage of the game!" Phil grabbed his hand. "Lead on, Macduff!"

My first impression of the laboratory was that it was the cleanest, lightest and most cheerful place in the entire house. It was white and shining. The sun streamed in through floor-to-ceiling windows. A pool of sunlight danced in the water of a spotless tiled floor. Looking upward, I discovered a skylight.

Around three sides of the room ran narrow metal tables filled with all sorts of queer contraptions, the trappings of science! A large sink, taps gleaming, and a row of flat-topped porcelain tables set end to end, and dividing the room into identical halves, gave the impression of a modern and up-to-date kitchen. Against the fourth wall stood a stool cabinet, windowless, and with long doors, bright as mirrors, meeting in the middle. The doors were fastened by a lock, which now hung open.

McIntyre, at sight of such shining splendor, rubbed his chin thoughtfully. "Never realized science was so clean," he said. "Thought messing with test tubes was a nasty business."

"Where do we start?" Phil asked. "And what do we hunt?"

"We start at the cabinet and we hunt cyanide."

I grunted. "You don't think your smart murderer is leaving cyanide scattered around loose, do you?"

"What would you do, Elsie, if you were a murderer and had some cyanide to dispose of in a hurry?"

I opened my eyes widely. "Sort of a 'purloined letter' business, you mean? You believe he hid it here in the laboratory, where it wouldn't be noticed among the other poisons?"

"Elsie, I apologize!" He made me a sweeping bow. "You do have a brain in your head, after all! I sometimes use you, but mostly you don't!"

"Good Lord!" exclaimed Phil, examining the interior of the cabinet. "There's enough stuff in here to kill off an army!" Row upon row of squat-necked bottles faced us from the glass shelves. All were neatly labeled.

"We begin!" cried Mac, and began lifting the bottles one by one. I questioned helplessly: "How will we know cyanide if, and when, we find it?"

"It's rather colorless powder, Elsie, with a faint pinkish cast. And it smells of bitter almond."

"I know. I hope I don't stick my nose into it." I wrinkled that organ. "I don't want to have another sneezing fit."

"Well, it isn't here!" Mac sighed some time later. "Folled again, my hearties!" He twisted an imaginary mustache. "Guess I'm slipping, children." He strolled to the windows and peered down into the yard below. "By golly!"

"Eh?" Phil ran around the table. "What?"

"That!" Mac pointed downward. All I could see was a shabby, bursting barrel stuffed with trash and papers. "Come on!" he shouted. "We're going to investigate that trash pile!"

NAIL-LESS HOMES

WHEN that new building boom so long prophesied does eventuate, it is going to be a humdinger. That is evident from the startling prophecies made every little while regarding materials and methods of construction.

At a conference in the Yale School of Fine Arts, R. V. Parsons, research engineer, tells of fire-resistant houses stuck together with a resinous glue that will make the wood almost as strong as metal.

This construction, he suggests, will be used to create a flock of new cities for people with moderate incomes. A city will be a community enterprise, having not less than 25,000 acres of land, with all property titles held by common authority, and will contain 30,000 to 100,000 persons. There will be a "green belt" around every city, as a barrier and for playgrounds and gardens. The houses will go up quickly and easily, 10,000 at a time.

The construction too, he says, "will make a better house than can possibly be contrived from thousands of parts nailed together by hand carpenter labor."

It sounds wonderful. But there's usually at least one catch in a Utopian plan of any kind. With such a type of construction, what will happen to the carpenters and other building trades? And to the nail industry?

HOSPITAL SERVICE GAINS

WHILE the debate about "socialized medicine" continues to trouble part of the public, another part goes swiftly ahead with cooperative, non-profit medical service programs. According to the American Hospital Association there are now 53 such groups in the country with nearly 3,000,000 members. In New York City the hospital service plan doubled its enrollment during 1938. Fifteen cities and one state which had not done so before inaugurated the system last year.

The hospital service plan is simply an insurance plan, whereby a lot of people, pooling small fees regularly, may receive a specified amount of hospital or medical care when emergency arises. It also pays the doctors for work which either would not have to come to them or would have been poorly paid if it came.

So long as patients may choose their doctors and hospitals, and doctors and hospitals follow recognized ethical practices, the system promises more and better medical care and greater reward for doctors without the dire effects feared in some quarters.

We may yet have to build houses with sound-proof cellars to escape from loud-speakers in the sky ordering us to buy this and that.

Up to find a snow storm, a real one that was received by everything from shouts of glee to growls. My reaction was about half way between. Within the hour I began hearing tales of snows back in the old days. Seems to me, too, that the snows were deeper when I was a youngster, but I have commented on them very little since hearing a wise man explain why the snows seemed deeper then. A snow that would be up to my waist as a child now would be little more than knee deep.

Slick highways now and slower traffic than I have seen in many a moon. Everyone being careful, but soon the snow will pass and most of us will become careless again. A. R.: "(a) I would like to know if it is safe to have a mole removed with an electric needle and if it will leave a scar. This mole is on the face in a conspicuous place. (b) Is there any harm in having a temperature of 99 up to 99½ in the afternoon almost daily?"

Answer—(a) Removal of moles with electric needles is a satisfactory form of treatment. No guarantee can be made that a scar will not result. (b) Certainly. It calls for a complete physical examination, especially of the chest, immediately.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

WHOSE GUESS IS IT?

THAT QUESTION is one of the stock jokes in some bridge circles, when the bidding is ended and a careless player is in doubt as to whether it is his lead or his partner's. Pretty logical rules govern the choice of lead, based on the bidding that has been done and the cards that are held. But sometimes the card that seems to be probably the best possible lead turns out to be the worst, and the one which figures to be the worst lead turns out to be the best.

This deal was bid differently at most tables of a duplicate game, nearly all declarers somehow reaching contracts of 7-Spades. The briefest bidding was where North bid 1-Diamond and South went to one to seven. In all cases North bid his diamonds.

At some tables, after a lead of the heart Q, the declarer managed to go down two, losing two trump tricks to East. At several the set was held to one after that lead because the declarer played the hand right. After the heart K won, the spade disclosed East's trump holding. The heart K was then cashed, club taken in, Diamond A and K played furnishing a heart discard, and the club K furnishing another, then a heart was ruffed by South, who threw East in the lead with the spade 5 to the 6, only trick lost.

Perfect play was of no value to one declarer, however, because an inexperienced player led the diamond Q, theoretically worst lead in his hand, judging from the bidding. That, however, broke communication between the declarer's holdings so that he could never get a heart discard on the club K and had to lose a heart and a trump, no matter what he tried to do.

DEATH AT THE MANOR

BY M. E. CORNE

CHAPTER FORTY-THREE

"IS-IT IT important?" I asked Mac when I recalled that Mrs. Witherspoon didn't move when I cut her finger during the manœuvre.

"I think so. Tell me, Elsie, did the finger bleed?"

"Bleed?" I tried to think. "No—no, it didn't bleed. The cut made a gash like I said and the blood sort of came to the top, but it didn't run over. It was like—like jelly!"

Phil whistled. I glanced from one to the other. "What does it mean?"

"It means, girl," Mac said, "it means that she was dead when you cut her finger."

"Dead?" I had difficulty swallowing. "Then when I was working on a corpse?"

"You were," he affirmed. "Dead bodies, Elsie, don't bleed."

"Oh!" I gasped. "I couldn't have saved her. It was her time to go and she went."

"Why—that's what Mr. Horace said. His very words!"

"So where does that get us?" Phil demanded. "She died half an hour earlier than we thought. That fact doesn't solve the mystery by a whole lot!"

Mac agreed: "It doesn't solve the mystery, lad, but it helps. It does help."

"Well, it's way over my head," Phil was cross. "If you know, who did the killing, as you keep hinting, why don't you do something about it?"

"Ditto," put in the chief. "Say the word and I'll get a warrant."

Mac regarded them tolerantly: "Ever heard the old saying: 'There's a time and a place for everything'?"

"Sure, but—"

"This is the place, Benson, but it isn't the time. I don't know the identity of the killer. I only suspect. And if it is who I think it is, we have about as much chance of proving his crimes as Elsie here has of flying to the moon. Our man or woman is no common murderer. He or she is smart—clever! Our criminal left no loose ends. Not one!"

I said anxiously: "But you have eliminated Mr. Richard?"

"Mostly, Elsie; mostly. Unless I'm greatly mistaken, he hasn't the guts—begging your pardon—for murder. Stealing just about finished him!"

"Poison is a woman's weapon, isn't it, Mac?" inquired the chief, scratching his head.

"Poison is anyone's weapon," Mac informed him, his eyes twinkling. "He was too old a hand to be so easily tripped. And that reminds me that I want to take a look at the laboratory upstairs. Not that I expect to find the cyanide neatly labeled and waiting for me. He hastened to add, 'but it just doesn't pay to take things for granted in this business. Well?' He raised his voice inquiringly. Someone was knocking.

"I may come in?" A familiar voice sounded in the hall.

"So?" exclaimed Phil in a bored tone. "Our palmy-walpy, the count! Wonder what he wants?"

"Mac!" I jerked the detective's sleeve. "I—I think I know what he wants. Tell him to come back in a minute."

"You know!" Mac's eyebrows were in momentary danger of tangling with his hair. "My God! Is there no end to your deceit?" He looked angry. I thought he would refuse my request, but he only shrugged his shoulders and went to the door. "Now what?" he demanded when he had sent the count about his business.

I closed my eyes, took a deep breath and began. When I had finished my story of the meeting in the woods he had no word to say. He stood staring at me as if I were some strange sort of insect he had never seen.

"You take the cake, Elsie!" he said finally. "Are you quite positive you aren't hiding the murderer around the house somewhere?"

I had the grace to flush. "Sorry—anyway, you know now."

"Yes, I know NOW," he echoed, and added something about "locking the barn door after the horse was stolen." I never knew a man so fond of quoting maxims.

"So his royal highness tries his hand at blackmail!" Phil remarked thoughtfully.

"Regular blackmailers' paradise, this!" Mac growled. "Everyone with something to hide, and willing to pay to keep it hidden! Evidently Orsini knows where the tissue came from; and now that the girl has turned him down, he's going to squeal."

"But we've hunted high and low for those tissues," Phil reminded him. "Not a soul in this house smokes hand-rolled cigarettes; I can vouch for that!"

"Don't worry your head about it," Mac advised. "We'll just wait for his next return and tell us all about it."

But McIntyre, for once in his life, was over-optimistic. The count did not return to tell us all about it. Ten, fifteen, twenty minutes we waited until, at last, with a muttered oath, Mac jumped up and dashed out into the corridor.

"I'll find that fellow if I have to tear the place to pieces!" he stormed. "You!" he hailed a figure in cap and apron. "Have you seen Count Orsini?"

"No." The girl shook her head. "I see no one," she said, and passed quickly by him, darting fearful backward glances at his scowling countenance.

"Are you looking for someone?" "Eh?" He spun around. In the doorway of the drawing room stood Daphne Witherspoon.

"Yes!" He strode toward her. "I'm looking for that ex-hance of yours."

A half-smile hovered about her lips. "Aren't you a trifle premature, Mr. McIntyre?" she drawled. She nodded behind her. "Count Orsini is inside. We have been discussing plans for a quiet and early wedding."

"And that," remarked Mac dispiritedly, "is that?"

"How can he marry that—that clotheshorse?" I demanded indignantly of the world in general. "And break Mr. Jeffrey's heart?"

"You never can tell why a girl marries a certain man," Mac returned, with a flash of his old humor. "Look at you and Phil—"

"Hush!" My face felt like a four-alarm fire. Phil and I were not even engaged.

Phil grinned, enjoying my discomfort. "Oh, I'm not so bad, am I, Elsie? Of course, I haven't much money, but I am good looking!"

"Conceited pup!" I retorted, sticking my tongue out at him. "You'll never cause Apollo any anxious moments!"

"My God!" He groaned in mock despair. "Will you never stop raving about that guy? You think maybe you're a Venus?"

"If you two want to compete for a beauty prize," said Mac, disgusted, "you can stay here and compete in the laboratory inside out."

"You're not sneaking away from us! Not at this stage of the game!" Phil grabbed my hand. "Lead on, Macduff!"

My first impression of the laboratory was that it was the cleanest, lightest and most cheerful place in the entire house. It was white and shining. The sun streamed in through a floor-to-ceiling window. A pool of sunlight danced in the center of a spotless tiled floor. Looking upward, I discovered a skylight.

Around three sides of the room ran narrow metal tables filled with all sorts of queer contraptions, the trappings of science! A large sink, taps gleaming, and a row of flat-topped porcelain tables set end to end, and dividing the room into identical halves, gave the impression of a modern and up-to-date kitchen. Against the fourth wall stood a steel cabinet, windowless, and with long doors, bright as mirrors, meeting in the middle. The doors were fastened by a lock, which now hung open.

McIntyre, at sight of such shining splendor, rubbed his chin thoughtfully. "Never realized science was so clean," he said. "Thought messing with test tubes was 'nasty business'."

"What do we start?" Phil asked. "And what do we hunt?"

"We start at the cabinet and we hunt cyanide."

I grunted. "You don't think your smart murderer is leaving cyanide scattered around loose, do you?"

"What would you do, Elsie, if you were a murderer and had some cyanide to dispose of in a hurry?"

I opened my eyes widely. "Sort of a 'purlined letter' business, you mean? You believe he hid it here in the laboratory, where it wouldn't be noticed among the other poisons?"

"Elsie, I apologize!" He made me a sweeping bow. "You do have a brain in your head, after all! Only sometimes you use it, but mostly you don't!"

"Good Lord!" exclaimed Phil, examining the interior of the cabinet. "There's enough stuff in here to kill off an army! Row upon row of skull-necked bottles faced us from the glass shelves. All were neatly labeled.

"We begin!" cried Mac, and began lifting the bottles one by one. I questioned helplessly: "How will we know cyanide if, and when, we find it?"

"It's rather colorless powder, Elsie, with a faint pinkish cast. And it smells of bitter almond."

"I know. I hope I don't stick my nose into it." I wrinkled that organ. "I don't want to have another sneezing fit."

"Well, it isn't here!" Mac sighed some time later. "Folled again, my hearties!" He twisted an imaginary mustache. "Guess I'm slipping, children. He strolled to the windows and peered down into the yard below. 'By golly!'"

"Eh?" Phil ran around the table. "What?"

"That!" Mac pointed downward. All I could see was a shabby, bursting barrel stuffed with trash and papers. "Come on!" he shouted. "We're going to investigate that trash pile!"

Forest Project Outlined
In Garden Club Session

F. K. Blair Speaks of Evergreens
at Meeting

Mrs. F. K. Blair outlined the Children's Forest Project and Mr. Blair talked on "Evergreens" at the February meeting of Pickaway County Garden club, Friday, when it met at the home of Mrs. Ione Reichelderfer, E. Union street.

Mrs. C. K. Hunsicker, club president, called the meeting to order, opening the session with group singing of "America". Miss Abbe Mills Clarke played the piano accompaniments. Mrs. G. G. Campbell, secretary, read the minutes of the previous meeting and the club roll call. A letter of appreciation from the Circleville Board of Education, for scales purchased by the Garden club for use in the grade schools, was read.

At the request of Mrs. Hunsicker, Mrs. Blair outlined the Children's Forest Project which is being carried on throughout schools in this country. Each school child is asked to contribute a penny to purchase a small tree. The sum of $4 will plant 1,000 trees per acre, after which the United States government assumes full responsibility for their care. Mrs. M. E. Noggle, chairman of the civic project committee, will be in charge of this fund, to which the club voted a $4 contribution. Each acre of the Children's Forest will be suitably marked in honor of the contributors.

Mrs. Hunsicker closed the business session by reading a poem that appeared in the current issue of the "Garden Path" entitled, "Flowers", by Elizabeth H. Kern. The president then presented Mr. Blair and R. L. Brehmer. Mr. Blair read a detailed description of color slides of evergreens and shrubs which had been compiled by Professor L. C. Chadwick of Ohio State university. Mr. Brehmer operated the projection machine and showed the color slides taken by Professor Victor Reis of O. S. U.

Evergreens, it was pointed out, include the broad and narrow-leaved varieties, probably the most popular in this section being the Japanese and old English yews. For foundation or corner work, they are the most desirable, as the low spreading types combine well in most landscaping units. The Oregon holly or grape is perhaps the most popular broad leaved variety. It produces yellow flowers in the Spring which turn to clusters of blue berries in the Autumn.

Effective for garden hedges are the broad leaved Boxwoods and the various ivies make evergreen hedges when planted near walls or stone fences.

Canadian Hemlocks and Red Cedars can be effectively used for decorative phases or will serve as a screen to hide defects in architecture and general surroundings.

Lovely slides depicting the use of Rhododendrons and Azaleas in garden beautification were shown. The fact that the glacial period left an alkaline substance in the soil in this territory, makes their growth practically impossible as they require an acid soil.

Creeping Junipers, the Bar Harbor and Alpine varieties, make rock garden and hill landscaping a thing of beauty. One variety of the Bar Harbor Juniper is only three or four inches in height.

For large spaces, the Nordman Fir and the Serbian and Oriental Spruces are the most popular especially in this section of the country. For outdoor living rooms, these are most effective. The closing slides showed the pleasing combinations to be had by combining Firethorne bushes, with their gorgeous orange berries, with the various evergreens.

At the close of the program, Mrs. Reichelderfer, assisted by Mrs. James Moffitt, Mrs. T. F. Jeffries and Mrs. Ella Hornbeck, served delectable refreshments to the group.

Miss Elsie Jewell was admitted as a new member at this meeting.

Forest Project Outlined In Garden Club Session

F. K. Blair Speaks of Evergreens at Meeting

Mrs. F. K. Blair outlined the Children's Forest Project and Mr. Blair talked on "Evergreens" at the February meeting of Pickaway County Garden club, Friday, when it met at the home of Mrs. Ione Reichelderfer, E. Union street.

Mrs. C. K. Hunsicker, club president, called the meeting to order, opening the session with group singing of "America." Miss Abbe Mills Clarke played the piano accompaniments. Mrs. G. G. Campbell, secretary, read the minutes of the previous meeting and the club roll call. A letter of appreciation from the Circleville Board of Education, for scales purchased by the Garden club for use in the grade schools, was read.

At the request of Mrs. Hunsicker, Mrs. Blair outlined the Children's Forest Project which is being carried on throughout schools in this country. Each school child is asked to contribute a penny to purchase a small tree. The sum of $4 will plant 1,000 trees per acre, after which the United States government assumes full responsibility for their care. Mrs. M. E. Noggle, chairman of the civic project committee, will be in charge of this fund, to which the club voted a $4 contribution. Each acre of the Children's Forest will be suitably marked in honor of the contributors.

Mrs. Hunsicker closed the business session by reading a poem that appeared in the current issue of the "Garden Path" entitled, "Flowers," by Elizabeth H. Kern. The president then presented Mr. Blair and R. L. Brehmer. Mr. Blair read a detailed description of color slides of evergreens and shrubs which had been compiled by Professor L. C. Chadwick of Ohio State University. Mr. Brehmer operated the projection machine and showed the color slides taken by Professor Victor Reis of O. S. U.

Evergreens, it was pointed out, include the broad and narrow-leaved varieties, probably the most popular in this section being the Japanese and old English yews. For foundation or corner work, they are the most desirable, as the low spreading types combine well in most landscaping units. The Oregon holly or grape is perhaps the most popular broad leaved variety. It produces yellow flowers in the Spring which turn to clusters of blue berries in the Autumn. Effective for garden hedges are the broad leaved Boxwoods and the various ivies make evergreen hedges when planted near walls or stone fences.

Canadian Hemlocks and Red Cedars can be effectively used for decorative purposes or will serve as a screen to hide defects in architecture and general surroundings.

Lovely slides depicting the use of Rhododendrons and Azaleas in garden beautification were shown. The fact that the glacial period left an alkaline substance in the soil in this territory, makes their growth practically impossible as they require an acid soil.

Creeping Junipers, the Bar Harbor and Alpine varieties, make rock garden and hill landscaping a thing of beauty. One variety of the Bar Harbor Juniper is only three or four inches in height.

For large spaces, the Nordman Fir and the Serbian and Oriental Spruces are the most popular especially in this section of the country. For outdoor living rooms, these are most effective. The closing slides showed the pleasing combinations to be had by combining Firethorne bushes, with their gorgeous orange berries, with the various evergreens.

At the close of the program, Mrs. Reichelderfer, assisted by Mrs. James Moffitt, Mrs. T. F. Jeffries and Mrs. Ella Hornbeck, served delectable refreshments to the group.

Miss Elsie Jewell was admitted as a new member at this meeting.

New Champion Tire

THE New Firestone Champion Tire, a product of years of speedway experience and laboratory research. Streamlined and ultra-modern in appearance, this new tire introduces several revolutionary features of design and construction, including a new Gear-Grip tread and a Safety-Lock cord body. The new tread design provides greater traction efficiency and retains its superior non-skid qualities after many thousands of miles of service. The cotton fibre of the Safety-Lock cord is tightly twisted into a strand of high tensile strength, treated by the patented Firestone Gum-Dipping process, and locked together to form the tire body. This construction affords a new measure of blowout protection.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND

Culminating two years of intensive research and six months of actual filming, Darryl F. Zanuck's production, "Jesse James," 20th Century-Fox's spectacular drama of the nation's most famous outlaw and the turbulent events that gave him to the world, comes Sunday, in brilliant technicolor, to the screen of the Grand theatre.

In this epic story of a lawless era we are given a true and stirring picture of the most colorful outlaw that ever lived. For in "Jesse James" the almost legendary figure is portrayed by Tyrone Power exactly as he was—neither all good nor all bad, a brave and tender husband to the girl who married him, a victim of injustice to the simple folk who knew him and, to the people who hated him, an outlaw and a killer.

Tyrone Power, in the title role, gives what can only be described as one of the finest performances of the year. In the last analysis, it is he who makes the character of James such a sympathetic figure in the eyes of the audience. We can think of no actor who could have done it better, or even as well.

Henry Fonda is excellent as Frank James, brother of Jesse, and Nancy Kelly, as Jesse's wife Zee, tops every performance she has given to date. Randolph Scott is splendid in the role of Marshall Wright. Individually brilliant performances are given by every member of an exceptional supporting cast which features Henry Hull, Slim Summerville, J. Edward Bromberg, Brian Donlevy, John Carradine, Donald Meek, John Russell and Jane Darwell.

vastating, although surprising denouements may in the end prove highly advantageous and breathtaking. Such a whirl of disruption and good fortune might possibly be attributable to an unexpected inheritance or to the startling coming to life of some dead issue or long-static situation. Be wary; use strategy where it will serve best.

Those whose birthday it is are justified in getting ready for some sort of whirlwind visitation, for there may be sudden and surprising upheavals with devastating and staggering denouement. It might be an unexpected inheritance or some other windfall. It will demand definite change, involving perhaps domestic or emotional strain, or inharmonious with superiors, but there is assurance of a grand culmination and congratulations.

A child born on this day may be audacious and adventurous, fond of drastic action and probably sensational ambitions. Nevertheless, it may be studious, steadfast and responsible, industrious and resolute, making a career of no mean significance. It may gain by bequest, trust or windfall of some sort.

For Sunday, February 5

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds augury of very lively and happy events in domestic, social, artistic and romantic affiliations, although these may be beset with some friction, even unpleasantness, due possibly to over-indulgence, extravagance, impetuous or reckless behavior. But despite auspicious prospects for congenial and sentimental relations there may be depressions.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a very eventful and joyous year in their private relations. These may have very romantic or social gratifications, unless extravagance, indulgence, strife or impetuosity are given bride.

A child born on this day may be well-endowed with social graces or artistic talents. It may be gentle and genial, despite tendencies to indulgence, extravagance, tempest and passionate or impulsive outbursts, or exhibitions of "temperament." It might succeed on the stage.

For Saturday, February 4

A DAY of strange, sudden, unpredictable occurrences is read from this very intriguing layout of the planetary forces. Results may be radically disruptive or de-

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND

Culminating two years of intensive research and six months of actual filming, Darryl F. Zanuck's production, "Jesse James," 20th Century-Fox's spectacular drama of the nation's most famous outlaw and the turbulent events that gave him to the world, comes Sunday, in brilliant technicolor, to the screen of the Grand theatre.

In this epic story of a lawless era we are given a true and stirring picture of the most colorful outlaw that ever lived. For in "Jesse James" the almost legendary figure is portrayed by Tyrone Power exactly as he was—neither all good nor all bad, a brave and tender husband to the girl who married him, a victim of injustice to the simple folk who knew him and, to the people who hated him, an outlaw and a killer.

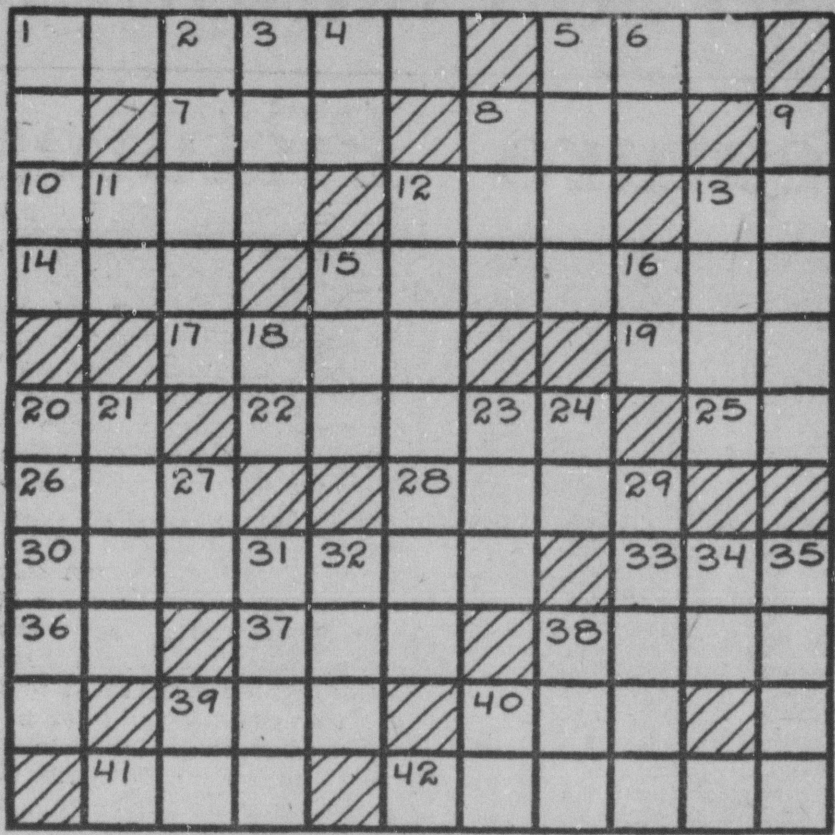

Tyrone Power, in the title role, gives what can only be described as one of the finest performances of the year. In the last analysis, it is he who makes the character of James such a sympathetic figure in the eyes of the audience. We can think of no actor who could have done it better, or even as well.

Henry Fonda is excellent as Frank James, brother of Jesse, and Nancy Kelly, as Jesse's wife Zee, tops every performance she has given to date. Randolph Scott is splendid in the role of Marshall Wright. Individually brilliant performances are given by every member of an exceptional supporting cast which features Henry Hull, Slim Summerville, J. Edward Bromberg, Brian Donley, John Carradine, Donald Meek, John Russell and Jane Darwell.

vastating, although surprising denouements may in the end prove highly advantageous and breathtaking. Such a whirl of disruption and good fortune might possibly be attributable to an unexpected inheritance or to the startling coming to life of some dead issue or long-static situation. Be wary; use strategy where it will serve best.

Those whose birthday it is are justified in getting ready for some sort of whirlwind visitation, for there may be sudden and surprising upheavals with devastating and staggering denouement. It

MORE THAN 100 PRESENT FOR WILLIAMSPORT'S MASON AND SON BANQUET

GRAND MASTER OF OHIO LODGE GIVES ADDRESS

Escort From Humboldt Lodge, Choral Organization Add To Evening

One hundred and nine Masons, their sons and guests attended the annual Mason and Son banquet of Heber Lodge, No. 501, E. and A. M. of Williamsport, Friday night.

The lodge was honored with the presence of Harry Meyer, of Columbus, Grand Master of the Masonic Lodge of Ohio, and an escort of distinguished Masons of Columbus.

An appreciation escort from Humboldt lodge, Columbus, headed by Frank Rose, formerly of Williamsport, attended the event with an outstanding choral group.

Dinner was served at 6:30 o'clock in the Parish house by ladies of the Eastern Star. The tables were decorated with Valentine decorations. Widowers, daughters and sisters of departed Masons were guests of the lodge to the dinner and program.

The program was held in the lodge room. Harry Smith, worshipful master of Heber lodge, was chairman in charge.

In addition to singing at the dinner, the chorus sang for the meeting. Two vocal solos were presented by Miss Laura McGhee, accompanied by Mrs. Paul Rose. Marimba selections were presented by Mr. Rose with Mrs. Rose and Miss McGhee as accompanists.

Mr. Meyer urged the sons of Masons to be honest, sincere and truthful. He pointed out the outstanding part the Masonic lodges play in the home and community, and urged sons to follow in the footsteps of their fathers in lodge work. Brief remarks were made by Thomas A. Bangs, worshipful master of Humboldt lodge.

Guests were present from the Masonic lodges of Circleville, New Holland, Jeffersonville, Lockbourne, Mr. Sterling, Kingston and Dayton.

Guests from Circleville included Clark K. Hunsicker, M. B. Trout, W. P. Creed, W. E. Hilgard, T. I. Miller, F. E. Halderson and William Ullon.

Heber lodge received its charter Oct. 21, 1875.

ATHLETIC CLUB MEN, C. OF C. IN VITAL MEETING

Athletic Club were in conference the result of which was awaited anxiously by all the city's and county's basketball teams and fans.

The superintendents, with only two negative votes, decided during a discussion earlier in the day to reconsider their vote of two weeks ago to remove the tournament from Circleville, sectionalizing it in the various county schools. The reconsideration vote was taken after a motion by Myron T. Johnson, superintendent of the Pickaway township school, who is also tournament manager. Mr. Johnson declared that circumstances had arisen since the sectionalizing action that had caused him to believe that the cage games should play in the Athletic Club gymnasium.

Rental Price Rejected
The superintendents had decided to take the meet away from Circleville because of a controversy over a fair rental price for the Athletic Club court. Last year the county paid $125; this year the Athletic Club asked $200.

When the vote was taken on reconsideration of the action only Supt. McDowell and Carl A. Higley, Ashville superintendent, voted against it. Mr. Johnson, John Florence of Washington, Brice Connell of Darby, Carl Bennett of Walnut, Harold Strous of Salt Creek, Harold Costlow of New Holland and Pielgord Hansen of Jackson township favored reconsideration. Supt. George Broyles of Monroe, Donald Coddling of Muhlenberg, Wendell Boyer of Williamsport, and Ray Spensler of Atlanta passing the vote.

After reconsideration was voted, the superintendent discussed many other angles of the question, finally voting to offer the Athletic Club $125 for use of the gymnasium and letting the question of the difference to be settled between the Chamber of Commerce and the Athletic Club. A Chamber of Commerce committee had previously offered to pay any difference that developed between the county schools and the Athletic Club for use of the court.

Success Expected
Several of the superintendents predicted that during the afternoon discussion, arrangements would be completed to have the annual contests conducted in the C. A. C. gym.
The committee in charge of the tournament includes Mr. Johnson, Mr. Bennett and Mr. McDowell.
Paying of teams for competition in the tournament was to be considered later in the day also.

WEST VIRGINIA REPORTS FIVE PERSONS DEAD

Tributaries Of Big Stream On Rampage; Louisville In Center Of Danger

amount reported in the 24 hours prior to 8 a. m. Friday. The melted snow in the 24 hours previous to 8 a. m. Saturday amounted to .40 of an inch.

High temperature Friday was 21 degrees. During the night the mercury dropped to 11 degrees. Cloudy and warmer weather was predicted for Sunday.

The drop in temperature prevented the snow from causing flood dangers. The Scioto river is bank full and flooding only the lowest lowlands.

The stage was 10 feet at the W. Main street bridge Saturday at 10 a. m., four feet below the stage Thursday. Other streams in the county are swollen.

The state highway patrol reported Friday night there is no danger from high water from streams or rivers in central Ohio.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 4.—With five dead and more than 500 already homeless, many tributaries of the Ohio river went on the rampage today, pouring tons of water into the Ohio to create a grave flood threat.

Large cities in the Ohio valley, battered by the disastrous 1937 floods, were not in immediate danger but towns on streams feeding the Ohio were being pounded by high waters, due to heavy rains and melting snows.

Rivermen said that the Ohio, which was rising rapidly, would not reach its crest until Sunday at Cincinnati, and possibly not before Monday in Louisville.

Red Cross Ready
At Cincinnati, with a 55 foot crest expected, the Red Cross began marshalling boats and crews for possible flood emergency work.

However, there was no formal mobilization and City Manager Charles Sherrill announced that disaster relief machinery established during the 1937 floods would not be called out unless the river approached 65 feet.

Louisville also kept an anxious eye on the mighty Ohio, while the river was expected to reach flood stages at Marietta, O., Pomeroy, O., and some West Virginia towns below Huntington, W. Va. Only the lowlands will be flooded, however, unless more rain sends the river higher than the expected crest.

According to the West Virginia Road commission, four persons drowned in the rain-swollen waters of the Coal river at Danville and an aged farmer lost his life in a flooded creek near Clarksburg.

Towns on tributaries of the Ohio in Kentucky also were hard hit. Between 500 to 1,000 persons were forced to flee from their homes in eastern Kentucky alone. In western Kentucky, at Paintsville, there was a drinking water shortage as flood waters from the Paint river put pumps out of order. It will be 60 hours before the pumps can be repaired.

Corbin, Middlesboro, Pineville, Salsersville and Hazard were all threatened with floods, as the Red, Kentucky, Licking and Cumberland rivers left their banks. The towns of Morehead and Farmers already were inundated, with residents fleeing into the hills with whatever belongings they could carry.

Families Removed
With part of the downtown section of Middlesboro inundated as the Yellow Creek broke over its banks, rescue crews evacuated crowded families in boats. One crowded boat tipped over, spilling its human cargo into the raging stream. The occupants were rescued, however. Several families were housed in a railroad station, while the Red Cross furnished food and blankets.

Residents in danger areas were warned to evacuate the lowlands. Other sections of the nation also reported flood threats. The Black and St. Francis rivers in Missouri were at flood stages and torrential rains in Tennessee created a flood peril there. Missouri feared a quick thaw of its heaviest snowfall in 21 years, a 10 inch fall, might create real danger. The Tennessee river, it was feared, would surpass the flood stage near Bridgeport, Ala., Sunday night.

BEVERIDGE AT STONE'S
H. R. Beveridge, bar supervisor for Stone's grill for the last three years, has been transferred to the Circleville store replacing William Marco, who goes to Coshocton as manager of the Stone grill. Beveridge has had 31 years of experience in many hotels in the Midwest.

Local Theatres Offer Feature Pictures

A PHOTOGRAPHIC impression of the high-lights of Darryl F. Zanuck's production, "Jesse James," graphically shows some of the thrilling moments in the spectacular 20th Century-Fox Technicolor epic, which comes Sunday to the Grand theatre. Starred in the film are Tyrone Power, in the role of the famous outlaw, Henry Fonda as his brother Frank. Nancy Kelly who portrays the wife of Jesse James and Randolph Scott seen in an important role.

THE Cliftona is delighted at the prospect of having Norma Shearer and Clark Gable on its screen for three days starting Sunday in "Idiot's Delight." And isn't Mr. Gable, pride of Cadiz, the delight of all Ohio? He is shown here with Miss Shearer as they appear in the picture. Norma as a phony Russian princess and Clark as a song and dance man. He does things he's never done before on the screen, singing and dancing and such.

Appointment of Nevin would indicate that the administration is going even further with its job slashing program after having dropped more than 2,000 employes since the first of the year.

To Correct Elections
On the theory that irregularities in conducting elections should be charged to ignorance of the law rather than a desire to deliberately evasion, Secretary of State Earl Griffith is sending a questionnaire to boards of elections asking for their suggestions.

"One of the big difficulties with elections is the irregularities caused by the issuance of sick and disabled ballots," Griffith said, "and an attempt will be made in the legislature to have this practice stopped."

He said that the questionnaires will reveal what knowledge the various boards of elections have of the state election laws and he plans to interview board members and instruct them in the proper conduct of their office.

"I believe that if these boards are cognizant with the state election laws they will be able to do a better job of running elections," Griffith declared.

Rep. Donald D. Canfield (R-Wood) sees a good chance for his voluminous uniform traffic regulations bill to pass in the legislature this session.

Pointing out that the bill has the support of the Ohio Good Roads Federation and the State Automobile Association, Canfield said:

"Passage of the bill will insure against many abuses of traffic regulations and unscrupulous enforcement officials."

The bill will require uniform traffic devices and regulate speed limits in business, residence and school sections. School zone speed limits would be 20 miles, business sections 25 miles and residence districts 30 miles an hour.

Legislative sidelights—Rep. Willis Cory (R-Seneca) who operates a milk business in Fostoria, drinks orange pop while attending sessions. "I don't like the milk down here," he said. Rep. Margaret A. Mahoney (R-Cuyahoga) takes in two or three committee meetings every legislative day. A new member of the house, Miss Mahoney says that's the way to learn what's going on.

Political pot pourri—Jack Fluhrer, Toledo, secretary to the state highway director, is the property of the Toledo American Association baseball club, but hasn't played in 12 years. "I'd be in a terrible predicament if they insisted I play," Jack says.

Politics is due for an airing Monday night, from all reports, when the senate commerce and labor committee conducts its second hearing on the unemployment compensation commission ripper bill.

FEDERAL JUDGE FLEES SUMMONS

Edwin S. Thomas On Ship Heading South; U. S. Officials Act

Monday to hear testimony in the case of Judge Martin T. Manton, whose resignation as senior judge of the U. S. circuit court of appeals takes effect Tuesday.

As soon as it was learned Judge Thomas was on the Santa Barbara, Noonan radioed Captain Duncan Scott, master of the liner, demanding that the jurist be put off on the pilot boat outside New York harbor.

Noonan's message apparently arrived too late.

Two hours later the captain radioed back:

"Judge continuing trip."

It was then Noonan appealed to Washington authorities with the result that the judge was ordered to be hauled off the boat at Panama. The subpoena for him was issued after assistant Attorney General Thomas J. Dodd, assisting Noonan, made a telephone call to Assistant Attorney General Brien McMahon, in charge of the criminal division of the department of justice in Washington.

STEELE BURNED IN FLAMES AT OIL CO. GARAGE

Ted Steele, employe of the Circleville Oil Co., suffered minor burns on the arms Saturday in a fire in a garage at the bulk station, W. Mound street.

A gasoline pump had been taken into the garage to be cleaned. Gasoline draining from the pump ignited from a stove. Damage to the pump was estimated at $50. Employees had the blaze under control before firemen arrived. The department was called at 10:20 o'clock.

SCOTLAND YARD MOVES TO HALT IRISH OUTBREAK

Special Guards Assigned For Royal Family In Latest Crisis

British government four days in which to remove troops from Eire. Expiration of the ultimatum coincided with the start of the bombings in England.

Several members of the parliament told Scotland Yard that they received anonymous letters warning them not to ask the questions they intended to place before the house of commons next week regarding the series of explosions.

"Be careful what you're doing," the letters admonished.

With the arraignment of a prisoner at Manchester, who was arrested in a powder raid, the first direct tie-up with the Irish Republican army was established.

"The cause will go on," the prisoner cried in court.

Caches Located
In their thorough sweep throughout the country, police today came on several caches of explosives and made numerous arrests.

Discovery of documents in Ulster purportedly outlining the terrorist plot will enable authorities to bag the ring-leaders, Scotland Yard asserted.

Constables were posted to protect the newspapers and telephone system after attempts were made to break into the Evening Standard office during the night, and efforts to interfere with telephone mains were reported. The Evening Standard is owned by Lord Beaverbrook, and its policies are strongly nationalist.

All police stations were placed under extra guard, and the gates to Scotland Yard, the central police office, were closed.

This was the result of the sensational seizure by the Ulster intelligence service of documents containing details of a widespread terrorist plot planned for Britain. Assassination of high police officials.

Escort From Humboldt Lodge, Choral Organization Add To Evening

One hundred and nine Masons, their sons and guests attended the annual Mason and Son banquet of Heber Lodge, No. 501, E. and A. M. of Williamsport, Friday night.

The lodge was honored with the presence of Harry Meyer, of Columbus, Grand Master of the Masonic Lodge of Ohio, and an escort of distinguished Masons of Columbus.

An appreciation escort from Humboldt lodge, Columbus, headed by Frank Rose, formerly of Williamsport, attended the event with an outstanding choral group.

Dinner was served at 6:30 o'clock in the Parish house by ladies of the Eastern Star. The tables were decorated with Valentine decorations. Widowers, daughters and sisters of departed Masons were guests of the lodge to the dinner and program.

The program was held in the lodge room. Harry Smith, worshipful master of Heber lodge, was chairman in charge.

In addition to singing at the dinner, the chorus sang for the meeting. Two vocal solos were presented by Miss Laura McGhee, accompanied by Mrs. Paul Rose. Marimba selections were presented by Mr. Rose with Mrs. Rose and Miss McGhee as accompanists.

Mr. Meyer urged the sons of Masons to be honest, sincere and truthful. He pointed out the outstanding part the Masonic lodges play in the home and community, and urged sons to follow in the footsteps of their fathers in lodge work. Brief remarks were made by Thomas A. Bangs, worshipful master of Humboldt lodge.

Guests were present from the Masonic lodges of Circleville, New Holland, Jeffersonville, Lockbourne, Mr. Sterling, Kingston and Dayton.

Guests from Circleville included Clark K. Hunsicker, M. B. Trout, W. P. Creed, W. E. Hilliard, T. L. Miller, F. E. Heraldson and William Ullon.

Heber lodge received its charter Oct. 21, 1875.

ATHLETIC CLUB MEN, C. OF C. IN VITAL MEETING

Athletic Club were in conference the result of which was awaited anxiously by all the city's and county's basketball teams and fans.

The superintendents, with only two negative votes, decided during a discussion earlier in the day to reconsider their vote of two weeks ago to remove the tournament from Circleville, sectionalizing it in the various county schools. The reconsideration vote was taken after a motion by Myron T. Johnson, superintendent of the Pickaway township school, who is also tournament manager. Mr. Johnson declared that circumstances had arisen since the sectionalizing action that had caused him to believe that the cage games should play in the Athletic Club gymnasium.

Rental Price Rejected. The superintendents had decided to take the meet away from Circleville because of a controversy over a fair rental price for the Athletic Club court. Last year the county paid $125; this year the Athletic Club asked $200.

When the vote was taken on reconsideration of the action only Supt. McDowell and Carl A. Higley, Ashville superintendent, voted against it. Mr. Johnson, John Florence of Washington, Brice Connell of Darby, Carl Bennett of Walnut, Harold Strous of Salt Creek, Harold Costlow of New Holland and Pielgord Hansen of Jackson township favored reconsideration. Supt. George Broyles of Monroe, Donald Coddling of Muhlenberg, Wendell Boyer of Williamsport, and Ray Sponsler of Atlanta passing the vote.

After reconsideration was voted, the superintendent discussed many other angles of the question, finally voting to offer the Athletic Club $125 for use of the gymnasium and letting the question of the difference to be settled between the Chamber of Commerce and the Athletic Club. A Chamber of Commerce committee had previously offered to pay any difference that developed between the county schools and the Athletic Club for use of the court.

Success Expected. Several of the superintendents predicted that during the afternoon discussion, arrangements would be completed to have the annual contests conducted in the C. A. C. gym.

The committee in charge of the tournament includes Mr. Johnson, Mr. Bennett and Mr. McDowell. Picking of teams for competition in the tournament was to be considered later in the day also.

WEST VIRGINIA REPORTS FIVE PERSONS DEAD

Tributaries Of Big Stream On Rampage; Louisville In Center Of Danger

(Continued from Page One) amount reported in the 24 hours prior to 8 a. m. Friday. The melted snow in the 24 hours previous to 8 a. m. Saturday amounted to 40 of an inch.

High temperature Friday was 21 degrees. During the night the mercury dropped to 11 degrees. Cloudy and warmer weather was predicted for Sunday.

The drop in temperature prevented the snow from causing flood dangers. The Scioto river is bank full and flooding only the lowest lowlands.

The stage was 10 feet at the W. Main street bridge Saturday at 10 a. m., four feet below the stage Thursday. Other streams in the county are swollen.

The state highway patrol reported Friday night there is no danger from high water from streams or rivers in central Ohio.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 4.—With five dead and more than 500 already homeless, many tributaries of the Ohio river went on the rampage today, pouring tons of water into the Ohio to create a grave flood threat.

Large cities in the Ohio valley, battered by the disastrous 1937 floods, were not in immediate danger but towns on streams feeding the Ohio were being pounded by high waters, due to heavy rains and melting snows.

Rivermen said that the Ohio, which was rising rapidly, would not reach its crest until Sunday at Cincinnati, and possibly not before Monday in Louisville.

Red Cross Ready

At Cincinnati, with a 55 foot crest expected, the Red Cross began marshalling boats and crews for possible flood emergency work. However, there was no formal mobilization and City Manager Charles Sherrill announced that disaster relief machinery established during the 1937 floods would not be called out unless the river approached 65 feet.

Louisville also kept an anxious eye on the mighty Ohio, while the river was expected to reach flood stages at Marietta, O., Pomeroy, O., and some West Virginia towns below Huntington, W. Va. Only lowlands will be flooded, however, unless more rain sends the river higher than the expected crest.

According to the West Virginia Road commission, four persons drowned in the rain-swollen waters of the Coal river at Danville and an aged farmer lost his life in a flooded creek near Clarksburg.

Towns on tributaries of the Ohio in Kentucky also were hard hit. Between 500 to 1,000 persons were forced to flee from their homes in eastern Kentucky alone. In western Kentucky, at Paintsville, there was a drinking water shortage as flood waters from the Paint river put pumps out of order. It will be 60 hours before the pumps can be repaired.

Corbin, Middlesboro, Pineville, Salsersville and Hazard were all threatened with floods, as the Red, Kentucky, Licking and Cumberland rivers left their banks. The towns of Morehead and Farmers already were inundated, with residents fleeing into the hills with whatever belongings they could carry.

Families Removed

With part of the downtown section of Middlesboro inundated as the Yellow Creek broke over its banks, rescue crews evacuated marooned families in boats. One crowded boat tipped over, spilling its human cargo into the raging stream. The occupants were rescued, however. Several families were housed in a railroad station, while the Red Cross furnished food and blankets.

Residents in danger areas were warned to evacuate the lowlands. Other sections of the nation also reported flood threats. The Black and St. Francis rivers in Missouri were at flood stages and torrential rains in Tennessee created a flood peril there. Missouri feared a quick thaw of its heaviest snowfall in 21 years, a 10 inch fall, might create real danger. The Tennessee river, it was feared, would surpass the flood stage near Bridgeport, Ala., Sunday night.

THE Cliftona is delighted at the prospect of having Norma Shearer and Clark Gable on its screen for three days starting Sunday in "Idiot's Delight." And isn't Mr. Gable, pride of Cadiz, the delight of all Ohio? He is shown here with Miss Shearer as they appear in the picture. Norma as a phony Russian princess and Clark as a song and dance man. He does things he's never done before on the screen, singing and dancing and such.

To Correct Elections

On the theory that irregularities in conducting elections should be charged to ignorance of the law rather than a desire to deliberately evasion, Secretary of State Earl Griffith is sending a questionnaire to boards of elections asking for their suggestions.

"One of the big difficulties with elections is the irregularities caused by the issuance of sick and disabled ballots," Griffith said, "and an attempt will be made in the legislature to have this practice stopped."

He said that the questionnaires will reveal what knowledge the various boards of elections have of the state election laws and he plans to interview board members and instruct them in the proper conduct of their office.

"I believe that if these boards are cognizant with the state election laws they will be able to do a better job of running elections," Griffith declared.

Rep. Donald D. Canfield (R-Wood) sees a good chance for his voluminous uniform traffic regulations bill to pass in the legislature this session.

Pointing out that the bill has the support of the Ohio Good Roads Federation and the State Automobile Association, Canfield said: "Passage of the bill will insure against many abuses of traffic regulations and unscrupulous enforcement officials."

The bill will require uniform traffic devices and regulate speed limits in business, residence and school sections. School zone speed limits would be 20 miles, business sections 25 miles and residence districts 30 miles an hour.

Legislative sidelights—Rep. Willis Cory (R-Seneca) who operates a milk business in Fostoria, drinks orange pop while attending sessions. "I don't like the milk down here," he said. Rep. Margaret A. Mahoney (R-Cuyahoga) takes in two or three committee meetings every legislative day. A new mem-

FEDERAL JUDGE FLEES SUMMONS

Monday to hear testimony in the case of Judge Martin T. Manton, whose resignation as senior judge of the U. S. circuit court of appeals takes effect Tuesday.

As soon as it was learned Judge Thomas was on the Santa Barbara, Noonan radioed Captain Duncan Scott, master of the liner, demanding that the jurist be put off on the pilot boat outside New York harbor.

Noonan's message apparently arrived too late.

Two hours later the captain radioed back: "Judge continuing trip."

It was then Noonan appealed to Washington authorities with the result that the judge was ordered to be hauled off the boat at Panama. The subpoena for him was issued after assistant Attorney General Thomas J. Dodd, assisting Noonan, made a telephone call to Assistant Attorney General Brian McMahon, in charge of the criminal division of the department of justice in Washington.

STEELE BURNED IN FLAMES AT OIL CO. GARAGE

Ted Steele, employee of the Circleville Oil Co., suffered minor burns on the arms Saturday in a fire in a garage at the bulk station, W. Mound street.

A gasoline pump had been taken into the garage to be cleaned. Gasoline draining from the pump ignited from a stove. Damage to the pump was estimated at $50. Employees had the blaze under control before firemen arrived. The department was called at 10:20 o'clock.

SCOTLAND YARD MOVES TO HALT IRISH OUTBREAK

Special Guards Assigned For Royal Family In Latest Crisis

British government four days in which to remove troops from Eire. Expiration of the ultimatum coincided with the start of the bombings in England.

Several members of the parliament told Scotland Yard that they received anonymous letters warning them not to ask the questions they intended to place before the house of commons next week regarding the series of explosions. "Be careful what you're doing," the letters admonished.

With the arraignment of a prisoner at Manchester, who was arrested in a powder raid, the first direct tie-up with the Irish Republican army was established.

"The cause will go on," the prisoner cried in court.

Caches Located

In their thorough sweep throughout the country, police today came on several caches of explosives and made numerous arrests.

Discovery of documents in Ulster purportedly outlining the terrorist plot to enable authorities to bag the ring-leaders, Scotland Yard asserted.

Constables were posted to protect the newspapers and telephone system after attempts were made to break into the Evening Standard office during the night, and efforts to interfere with telephone mains were reported. The Evening Standard is owned by Lord Beaverbrook, and its policies are strongly nationalist.

All police stations were placed under extra guard, and the gates to Scotland Yard, the central police office, were closed.

This was the result of the sensational seizure by the Ulster intelligence service of documents containing details of a widespread terrorist plot planned for Britain. Assassination of high police officials.
